DUFFY ACTS AS CLERK SWEARS OUT AFFIDAVIT

Sales Tax Worker Says Sister of Poulson Solicited Money for Davey Campaign.

SAYS HE WAS 'ASSESSED'

Declares Special Attorney Figured Out Contribution, Installment Payments.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — The attorney general's office today began investigating charges that two officials in the state tax commission violated the civil service law.

In an affidavit filed with Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy, Francis C. Hooper, a clerk in the sales tax division, charged that Daniel S. Earhart and Mrs. Florence Dailey solicited funds for Governor Davey's campaign from him. Hooper is a civil service employe.

Relative of Poulson.

Mrs. Dailey, an assistant supervisor in the sales tax section, is a sister of Francis Poulson, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee and Davey's "right-hand man." Earhart is employed by the commission as a special attorney.

The charges came as a result of Governor Davey's asserted "five per cent plan" to raise campaign funds. Hooper claimed Earhart "had it all figured out" that he was to contribute $78, either in a lump sum or five monthly installments of $15.60.

J. E. Williams, head of the sales tax division, revealed that Hooper gets an annual salary of $1560.

"But I know nothing of the reported five per cent assessment," Williams said.

Provides Jail Term.

A jail sentence of not more than six months and a fine of not less than $50 or more than $500 may be imposed upon conviction for violating the civil service law code which stipulates that it is unlawful for any person to "solicit directly or indirectly, orally or by letter, or be in any manner concerned in soliciting such assess-

"Joy Riders" Out On Spree, Escape Death By Inches

WELLINGTON —(INS)— Septuagenarians William White and Jacob Mills today were alive, remarkable enough, but they also were $74 poorer.

After pleading guilty before Mayor E. R. Lehman to charges of taking a "joy ride" while intoxicated, Millis, driver of the "joy ride" automobile, paid a fine and costs totaling $59.50 and White paid $14.50.

That was why they were $74 poorer.

They were alive because they were lucky.

As a finale to a wild drive around town, they took to the rails and drove 300 yards along the ties on the New York Central right of way before three tires blew out and they stopped — in front of an oncoming passenger train. The train stopped, too, while spectators lifted the automobile containing the aged men from the tracks.

Out of the way of the train, the pair got out of the car and promptly fell into an open sewer. They were pulled out by Patrolman Chester Elgin and taken before Mayor Lehman.

Former Inmate, Identified Here as Kidnaper of Two, Confesses After Capture

CLARA MAE KERR

CHARLES HOPKINS

Boy, 18, Arrested as He Sleeps In Columbus Rooming House.

A former inmate of the Mansfield reformatory, identified here yesterday from "rogues' gallery" pictures on file at the institution by two Ohio Wesleyan university students as their abductor, was captured early today in a Columbus rooming house.

The accused kidnaper, John J. Deitch, 18, paroled from the reformatory Feb. 1, was taken into custody by state highway patrolmen and Columbus police as he slept. Corp. H. W. Sowers of the Marion sub-station of the state patrol said he confessed to the kidnaping of Miss Clara Mae Kerr, 22, of Steubenville, and Charles Hopkins, 20, of Lansing, Mich., as they left a dance on the Wesleyan campus at Delaware Saturday night.

International News Service dispatches from Columbus where Deitch was held in jail, said the youth indicated he would plead guilty to armed robbery charges filed following his confession.

Did It for Thrill.

"I was caught guilty—I might as well plead guilty," the dispatches quoted Deitch as saying.

They said the former inmate freely admitted that he had abducted the pair, later releasing them unharmed.

"I did it for a thrill," he said.

Deitch denied that he had been smoking marijuana or that he had been drinking. He said he seldom drank.

He also was said to have admitted robbing Jack Davis, another O. W. U. student of a $15 check and some money and of robbing a Columbus motorist of $4 Friday night. Both robberies were alike, a gunman accosting the men as they set in their automobiles.

Deitch's picture was identified yesterday at the reformatory by Miss Kerr and Hopkins who viewed pictures of inmates paroled in the last few months. Their kidnaper ordered them to drive to Marion where he forced Hopkins from the car and then drove back to Delaware with Miss Kerr. Pursuing patrolmen caught up with him near the campus but he escaped on foot amid a hail of bullets fired by the officers.

Corporal Sowers said that auto theft and robbery charges had been filed at Marion against Deitch

At Delaware, Prosecutor H Lloyd Jones said that two charges of kidnaping and one of armed robbery will be lodged against Deitch when he is arraigned there today.

Deitch was received at the reformatory Feb. 1, 1937, from Franklin county, and was under sentence from one year until he became of age for auto theft.

STRIKERS LEAVE

500 Evacuate Detroit Plants on Orders From Union.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Five hundred sit-down strikers evacuated the two plants of Gar Wood Industries, Inc., today on orders of the United Automobile Workers union, pending a conference with the management.

The company, which specializes in small boats named for the racing driver, agreed to keep the plants closed while conferring with union leaders on complaints

Tracy M. Doll, UAW executive, said the strike was called yesterday because the company refused to negotiate a new contract or abide by grievance procedure unless the union would accept a 20 per cent wage cut. He said the company also wanted to abolish the shop steward system and transfer two per cent of the workers' bonus to foremen.

STATE VOTES ON ONE CANDIDATE

Alabama Goes Through Election Formality to Elect Senator.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — (AP) — Although the name of Sen. Lister Hill appeared alone on the ballot, the state went through the formality of a general election today to elect him to the senate seat vacated by Justice Hugo L. Black.

Hill, a former representative, won the Democratic nomination and immediately was appointed to the senate.

Next Tuesday candidates for governor, congress, and many other important offices will be voted upon in the regular Democratic primary.

Jackie's $4,000,000 Fortune Cut To $600,000, Records Show

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—From Washington today came tax records which indicated that unless Jackie Coogan's mother takes him to her bosom again, he may never get any of the money he earned as a movie star.

Further, it was reported that the $4,000,000 he earned by weeping and smiling simultaneously on the old silent screen has dwindled to $600,000.

"I don't exactly know what to say about those Washington papers," he said. "It probably is something that the lawyers will have to figure out. As for my fortune shrinking—gosh! I hope it isn't so, even if there was a depression."

Mrs. Lillian Coogan Bernstein, his mother, fired her press agent, locked herself in the Coogan mansion in the San Fernando valley and said nothing. Neither did her lawyers.

"We are maintaining a dignified silence," they said.

Records of the board of tax appeals indicated that legally Mrs. Bernstein and her husband had full right to every cent he made before he became of age. Income tax returns were filed for Jackie, his father, his mother and Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc., the board's transcript showed, but all the returns were lumped under the name of the late John H. Coogan, sr.

This technical explanation, coupled with California law, meant that since no provision had been made to safeguard Jackie's money in his own name, it never did belong to him.

INCOME TAX TO PAY BRITAIN'S BUDGET BOOST

Levy to Be Boosted From 25 to 27½ Per Cent to Get $4,721,990,000.

MEETS HUGE ARMS COST

Commons Staggered by Outlay Planned by Government for Rearmament Program.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The British government jolted the nation today by boosting the income tax from 25 per cent to 27½ per cent to help pay the costs of the staggering rearmament program.

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, in his annual budget speech before a shocked house of commons, announced the income tax would be raised from five shillings in the pound to five shillings sixpence (from $1.25 to $1.37½ in $5 00).

Up $81,500,000 Pounds.

Presenting the budget bill for the 1938-39 fiscal year (beginning April 1), Sir John announced the government's total needs as 944,398,000 pounds ($4,721,990,000), an increase of 81,500,000 pounds over the previous year.

The chancellor also announced an increase in the duties on tea and oil. The higher tax on tea will reach into the pocketbook of virtually every family in the land, rich and poor. The higher income and oil taxes also will hit most of them.

He disclosed that the government already had bought "sufficient supplies of wheat, whale oil and sugar" to maintain civilian needs for the first few months if war broke out.

Special Exemptions.

The blow of the income tax boost was softened somewhat by announcement of a special exemption by which 2,000,000 small taxpayers will escape the increase.

In the United Kingdom everyone who earns 150 pounds ($750) or more a year pays income tax. But the tax will not be increased this year for single persons making up to 290 pounds or for married men with one child earning up to 400 pounds.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Robert McLean, president of the Philadelphia Bulletin, today was elected president of the Associated Press

The board of directors elected W. H Cowles of the Spokane Spokesman-Review first vice president, and Paul Patterson of the Baltimore Sun second vice president.

The other officers, including the executive board, were re-elected.

Takes First Wooden Nickels

Even school men are attracted by the wooden nickels which were introduced in the city and county today to promote the observance of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Northwest territory. W. L. Miller, left, superintendent of Mansfield schools, is shown here purchasing the first wooden nickels from John Correll, instructor at Hedges school, and general chairman of the Richland county celebration committee Funds obtained from the 10,000 nickels will be used for expenses of the county-wide celebration

Decorations Go Up, City Turns 'Pioneer Conscious'

Schools, Civic Groups and Business Houses Join In Celebration Monday When Caravan Arrives.

With the city decorated in colorful banners and Central park's monuments, fountain and cannons repainted Mansfield had become "pioneer conscious" today and schools, civic organizations and business firms joined in the plans for the Northwest Territory celebration next Monday.

The city and county will virtually halt their regular activities Monday afternoon to greet the federal ox cart caravan and to participate in the observance here which is expected to attract more than 60,000 persons to the city.

City Offices, Schools Close.

City offices and schools will be closed during the afternoon and the county's rural schools have been authorized to close if the superintendents order suspension of classes While it had not been definitely decided today, it was believed that offices in the courthouse also will be closed during the afternoon ceremonies.

The county-wide observance of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Northwest Territory will reach a climax Monday night when a spectacular pageant, "Freedom On the March," will be presented at the Richland county fairgrounds by a company of 38 federal players.

IRWIN PLANS TO 'BEAT CHAIR'

He'll Be Able to Resist Current, Beauty's Killer Says.

NEW YORK—(INS)—They may send Robert Irwin, the eccentric sculptor, to the electric chair for the murder of pretty Ronny Gedeon, an artist's model and two other persons, but Irwin won't die. That was his own firm conviction today based on a study of electricity which he has been making.

Following an appearance in supreme court where his counsel's plea for immediate trial was overruled, Irwin revealed his chair-cheating plan

With just a little more study of electricity, he said, he will be armed with enough knowledge so that when and if he occupies the electric chair he will be able to take the shock without harm.

CZECHS SAY 'NO'

Government Says It'll Oppose Demand for Nazi State.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia—(INS)—Disturbed by anti-Jewish disorders, President Edouard Benes and his Czechoslovakian government aids made is clear today that they will oppose Nazi demands for a German state within this country's borders.

Replying sharply to the demands of Konrad Henlein, leader of the Nazi German Sudeten party, for German Autonomy and for a pro-German foreign policy, a semi-official communique said:

"Henlein's demands for a change of the country's foreign policy are unacceptable to the Czechoslovakian government. Under no circumstances can there be any question of a change in the country's system of alliances . . .

"The government will continue unperturbed on its path of seeking a solution of the republic's national problems through completion of the minority . . statute."

Joint Congress Committee to Hold First Session Tonight.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The congressional investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority will get under way tonight at an informal meeting of the five senators and five representatives appointed to make the inquiry. Senator Donahey (D-Ohio) said it would be a 'get acquainted session"

Trapped 11 Days, Dog Rescued

PIKESVILLE, Md. — (AP) — "Frisky," a terrier, was safe at home today after wandering for 11 days underground in Pikesville's storm drainage system.

Thin, weak, sore and hungry from days spent in wriggling through the pipes, the dog was rescued through a garage floor drain after James Taylor, Negro chauffeur, heard his feeble bark.

Friends of Shirley O'Conell, 13, "Frisky's" anxious owner, had lifted scores of manhole covers in their search for the dog.

110 MORE PUT TO WORK FIXING CITY SIDEWALKS

WPA Workers Transferred After Finishing Up Sewer Job; Relief Cash Alloted.

The improvement of Mansfield's broken down sidewalks moved along at swifter pace today as 110 additional WPA laborers were placed on the job to open up five additional projects in the city-wide program.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said the completion of the Wood street water line had permitted the transfer and would speed up the work.

With the 100 men already employed on the project at three different locations, the shift raises the total now employed on sidewalk improvement to more than 200, divided into seven crews.

Given Assignments.

Styert said the new crews were at work on Carpenter road, Summit street, Rae avenue and Raleigh avenue. The original force is employed on Shepard road, Brickman avenue and South Main street.

When the widening of Glessner avenue at the hospital is completed, he said the sidewalk crews would immediately start construction of a new five-foot walk along the entire hospital frontage.

Meanwhile county commissioners today allocated $7,220 in state relief funds to Mansfield, Shelby and the seven townships with the greatest relief burdens, but the amount will pay less than a third of the bills incurred for relief last month when costs reached an all-time high

C. L Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the county's own relief debt of more than $12,000 will make it neces-

SEE LINK IN TORSO MURDERS

Cleveland Officials to View Body of N. Y. Victim.

CLEVELAND—(UP)—A link between Cleveland's 11th torso murder and a similar mystery in New York state today took Cleveland officials to Osida, N Y, to view the trunk of a woman found in Lake Ontario.

Robert W Chamberlain, assistant safety director, and Deputy Police Inspector David Cowles took with them bone specimens from torso victims here in an effort to determine if the sugery in the New York case coincided with the torso cases here

It was pointed out that if the woman had been slain at Cleveland her torso would have had to pass down Lake Erie and either over Niagara Falls or through the Welland canal

Mansfield Tire Joins National Drive To Make Motoring Safer

The Mansfield Tire and Rubber company today had joined in a nation-wide safety campaign sponsored by the National Rubber Manufacturers association and designed to promote safe summer driving and stimulate new business for the rubber industry.

Included in the association's drive will be a series of advertisements in more than 300 newspapers, urging motorists to play safe by replacing worn tires with new ones. The campaign will terminate with National Tire Safety week from May 14 to 21

At a division conference last night at New York, A. L. Viles, president of the Rubber Manufacturers' association, said "about 50,000,000 tires now in use are smooth or will become smooth in 1938."

"Many of these tires are unsafe," he added, "and unless they are replaced, millions of motorists will be taking needless chances. They will be risking their lives for a few extra miles."

Planned to co-incide with the opening of the summer tourist season, the safety campaign will be sponsored by the automobile tire division of the association Leading tire manufacturers over the country will promote the drive

The Mansfield concern was not represented at the New York meeting yesterday where plans for the drive were outlined.

HONG KONG HEARS PEACE TALKS START

British, Chinese, and Japanese Diplomats Meet; All Turn Questions Aside.

POINT TO STALEMATE

Foreign Observers Say China, Japan Both Feel Strain of Prolonged Strife.

(By International News Service)

HONG KONG — Rumors that a Sino-Japanese truce may be in the making cropped up here again today with the almost simultaneous arrival of British, Chinese and Japanese diplomats.

No confirmation could be obtained in official circles that peace talks actually are under way or being prepared.

The rumors spread upon the arrival here of the British ambassador from Chungking, closely followed by the Japanese consul-general from Shanghai and T. V. Soong, premier of China, from Hankow.

Give No Explanation.

No official explanation was offered of the simultaneous presence of the three men in this city and all questions to authoritative British, Chinese or Japanese sources were turned aside.

Foreign observers, however, declare that both China and Japan are feeling the strain of the prolonged war to a great extent and recognize that a virtual stalemate prevails in Shantung province.

One well-informed Chinese with excellent connections although he holds no official position, unequivocally dismissed reports of a truce, however, declaring China would refuse to arbitrate while she is enjoying unprecedented success in the field.

Peace rumors in Hong Kong recalled recent dispatches from James R. Young, International News Service staff correspondent in Tokyo, revealing that the Japanese populace is weary of the prolonged hostilities and the nation at large is suffering greatly because of the unexpectedly heavy costs in life and money involved in the China campaign.

ROLLIE RETURNS

'All Is Forgiven,' Catcher Flies to Rejoin Indians.

CLEVELAND —(UP)— Rollie Hemsley, star catcher of the league leading Cleveland Indians, today was re-instated by Vice President Cyril C. Slapnicka.

Hemsley was fined $250 and given an indefinite suspension yesterday by Manager Oscar Vitt for breaking training rules Sunday night.

Hemsley and Slapnicka conferred for 45 minutes today and then the Indian vice president said he had "reached an agreement" with the playboy receiver. He said Hemsley had promised to "reform." The fine assessed by Vitt will stand, however.

The catcher will fly to Chicago and re-join the Indians tonight.

ment, contribution or payment from any officer, employe or subordinate in the classified service of the state."

Hooper has been under classified service for three years. He entered the service from Morgan county in 1935.

Attorney General Duffy assigned Will P. Stephenson and Frederick V. Cuff, assistants, to investigate the case.

DENIES PENSION PROBE

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Ferd M. Pickens, business administrator of the state division of aid for the aged, today denied published reports that federal auditors are making a special investigation of Ohio's old age pension system to determine whether politics has been injected into the division's work.

"The federal government is not now, nor has it ever, conducted a special investigation of the state division of aid for the aged," pickens said.

"The simple reason is that it has never been necessary to conduct an investigation. Federal auditors have been constantly and continuously checking the individual cases since the federal government's participation in the program in Ohio as in every other state. This check logically should be made because the federal government contributes one-half of the division's awards."

sary for the sub-divisions to raise their own funds for the rest of their March bills.

With the relief fund exhausted, Mitchell said the county probably will be forced to borrow enough to pay the $12,000 debt which was incurred during the first half of March before the burden was turned over to the subdivisions.

Mansfield, which has by far the heaviest relief cost, will receive $4,753 of the total allocation. Of that amount, $1,296 will be earmarked for administration.

Other allocations include $1,492 to Madison township; $500 to Shelby and $150 to Worthington township.

Five townships, which commissioners said have more relief expenses than they can pay from their own funds, were allocated small amounts. Jefferson, Cass, Troy and Plymouth townships received $75 each, while Bloomingrove township got $25.

Reo, sentenced to die in the electric chair, sought to "beat the chair" by swallowing short lengths of springs pulled from his cell mattress.

Fishermen Find Part of Plane Believed Missing Bomber.

HONOLULU, T. H.—(U.P.)—Naval aircraft from Pearl Harbor searched the northeastern Oahu area today for additional wreckage of a VP-18 bomber, lost during last month's Hawaiian area war maneuvers.

Search for the craft, which disappeared with six men aboard, was resumed after a fisherman found a protractor box on Lanikai beach.

CHICAGO — (INS) — A round of twilight golf today left Mr. and Mrs. Walter V. Vaurio of suburban Oak Park with a tragic memory. Vaurio sliced into the rough on the last hole.

Their 4-year-old son, Philip ran ahead to find the ball. He crawled under a fence and was poking about in the weeds when he disappeared with a scream. He had tumbled into a stone quarry and been dashed to death 125 feet below.

The Northwest Ordinance

Johnny Appleseed, Major County Benefactor, One of Territory's Characters

"Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to the good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged."

By FLOYD DENT
(Area Boy Scout Executive)

Among the interesting characters found in the early history of Mansfield and Richland county one stands out prominently, not so much for his deeds of daring and adventure, but for his good deeds of mercy and helpfulness.

John Chapman, born about 1770 in Massachusetts, followed the frontier of civilization in its march across the Northwest Territory. He was a regularly constituted minister of the church of New Jerusalem, according to the revelations of Emanuel Swedenborg. He was also a missionary of that faith under the authority of the regular association in the city of Boston.

He gathered apple seeds from cider presses in western Pennsylvania and carried them in a leather bag to the Ohio river where he usually obtained a boat and brought them to the mouth of the Muskingum and up that river, planting them in wild and secluded spots along its numerous tributaries. When his trees were ready for sale, he left them in charge of some one to sell for him. His prices were low and when people were too poor to pay for them, the trees were given free of cost.

He has been variously described, but all accounts agree that he was rather below medium height, wiry, quick in action and conversation, nervous and restless in his motions; eyes dark and sparkling; hair and beard generally long, but occasionally cut short; dress scanty, and generally ragged and patched; usually barefooted and bareheaded. However in cold weather he had old shoes or moccasins and an old hat some one had cast off.

The large orchards that flourished in the county were a result of his labors. He also had a knowledge of the medicinal values of many wild vegetables and herbs. These he gathered and gave to the pioneer housewives to use when sickness overtook the family. He also spent much time scattering the seed of these herbs so that every locality had a variety of these valuable plants.

Among the ones which he considered important were Hoarhound, catnip, may-apple, dog fennel, wintergreen, peppermint, and pennyroyal.

He left this vicinity about 1836 and continued his mission in Indiana until his death in the spring of 1847. He is buried in the Archer cemetery near Ft. Wayne.

Johnny Appleseed deserves a place in history among the heroes and martyrs, for he was both in his peculiar calling. His whole life was devoted to what he considered the public good, without regard to personal feeling, or hope of pecuniary reward.

Not once in a century is such a life of self-sacrifice for the good of others known. There has been but one Johnny Appleseed and it is hardly possible that there will ever be another.

of whom are college men from eastern universities, will arrive in the city with the federal ox cart caravan which is touring the five states formed from the original Northwest Territory.

There will be a parade through the city Monday afternoon which will be followed by a speaking and musical program at the west side of Central park.

The city's Scout troops, including both boys and girls, will present a Northwest Territory memorial program at 2 p. m. Sunday at the blockhouse in South park.

Dressed as pioneers and Indians, about 25 members of Boy Scout troop No. 6 and Girl Scout troop No. 5 will present a pantomime depicting the lives of the early settlers and the career of Johnny Appleseed.

William A. Duff, Ashland, an authority on the life of Johnny Appleseed, will tell of the colorful character, and Ernest Wessen will speak on the pioneer history of Mansfield.

The Senior High school band will play a concert preceding the talks and dramatic features.

At celebration headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce rooms today, committee members reported a brisk demand for the wooden nickels which were distributed in the city as souvenirs of the celebration to help in financing the program here.

Printed in green ink on thin wood, the nickels will be distributed as "change" by business firms and redeemed at five cents each if turned in before 5 p. m. next Monday.

Deep-Well Cooking Adds Zest to Foods

Modern electric ranges offer a deep-well cooker which is a money-saver, time-saver, and constant delight to any owner. It's a budgeteer's good luck that so many of the popular, homely foods are the very ones to cook to perfection in that deep-well of the electric range.

Juicy pot roasts—stews that are a tempting medley of flavors, chicken fricassee with dumplings as light as cake—these are food dreams that come true through deep-well cookery.

Most of these foods can be cooked on low heat, which uses very little current. Another cheerful fact about low heat cooking in the deep-well—it's so accurately controlled that it does away with watching and stirring. You can forget your dinner while it's cooking.

Most cooker wells are equipped with the kettle, a perforated rack or trivet for holding meat or vegetables off the bottom of the kettle, a pudding pan, and in some cases, a rack high enough to be placed over the food in the bottom of the cooker to furnish a level base for the pudding or vegetable pan.

Used as a steamer, half a dozen varieties of vegetables—even mild and strong-flavored ones in combination—may be cooked together. Prepare vegetables which will cook in about the same amount of time, place in layers, and add a small amount of water—about a cup—in the bottom of the cooker.

Turn to high or start until steam comes merrily forth, then turn switch to low or cook until vegetables are tender. Do not overcook vegetables. Moderns prefer firm, crisp, fresh-colored vegetables, rather than limp, discolored ones.

All of the not-so-tender cuts of meat are ideal for deep-well meals—pot roasts, briskets, or short ribs of beef, corned beef, shoulder, shoulder chops, cottage hams, fowl. If you're cooking vegetables and a dessert along with the meat, the cooker kettle will hold up to 3 pounds of meat, or a 3½ pound fowl—and there will be generous servings of everything else for a family of four of five.

If you've never gone in for steamed desserts—you're due for a pleasant surprise. Crumb and batter puddings, tapioca and rice puddings, the whole list of delicious plum puddings—all these can be cooked in that deep-well of your electric range.

The well is an excellent sterilizer for babies' bottles—and an ideal sterilizer for electric canning, too. Don't fail to become acquainted with the feats of cookery legerdemain performed by deep-well cookers! Try these deep-well menus and recipes!

SEASONAL ICING

Use strawberry frosting for your next batch of white cakes. Mix a third of a cup of crushed berries with two cups of confectioner's sugar. Add two teaspoons of lemon juice. Mix until creamy and then carefully ice the cakes.

Cocktail tid-bit: Spread thin slices of boiled tongue with salad dressing. Sprinkle with chopped pickle and finely-minced onion. Roll and wrap each slice in waxed paper. Chill. Then, using a sharp knife, cut each roll in half. Dip in salad dressing. Cover with minced celery and parsley combined. Insert wooden picks.

Electric Cooking Cool

By NORMA NEWTON in McCall's

The thing I like about electric ranges is that while they are grand looking, they are even better acting. And to my mind they act their prettiest in summer.

Take the matter of ovens. You don't need a very long memory to recall the time when ovens were, practically speaking, "sewed up for the summer." We used them only under stern compulsion.

But in these more fortunate days, we use the oven of electric ranges just as freely in summer as we do in winter.

Lots of work has gone into making ovens more usable in summer—insulation to keep the heat in the oven where it belongs, and time and temperature controls that take over the burden of watching.

And these new developments in the construction of ovens have led to easier ways to use them. For instance, cold oven meals, which seem to me the perfect answer to the hot-food-cool-cook problem, are simply entire meals that are placed one at a time in a cold oven.

The switch is then turned to the "bake" position, the temperature control and time clock properly set, and the oven automatically does the rest.

It is definitely cooling merely to know your mind and body are free of all responsibility until time to set the table.

Of course, thermostats, or heat controls, have taken the guesswork out of all sorts of baking. With thermostatic control and exact and level measurements, the most amateur cook can be fairly certain of uniformly good results each time she uses any certain recipe.

And with a kitchen that stays cool even with the oven going full tilt for hours, dreaded summer bakings become pretty easy. It's a pleasure to broil and bake in the summer—If the range is electric. An electric range means that the food broils and bakes—not you.

Try a Mansfield News-Journal Classified Ad for Quick Results.

Never melt fat to be used in cake or cookies. Cream it by pressing it against the side of a bowl with a large spoon. The process may be hastened by allowing the butter to stand until it is slightly soft. Select a spoon that is easy to hold so that the hand will not tire. Long, round-handled metal or wooden spoons with large, slotted bowls are best.

ASKS CONTRACT WITH HOSPITAL

City Begins Negotiations for Monthly Sewer Rental Fee of $200.

City officials today were negotiating with directors of Mansfield General hospital for the establishing of a sewer rental contract for the institution calling for an industrial rate of approximately $200 per month.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said he had written officials of the hospital explaining that the proposal was based on the recent findings by state examiners, in which they criticized the sewage department for not charging the hospital for sewer rental.

A proposal based on the present sewer rental ordinance, passed in March, 1937, was forwarded to Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, hospital superintendent, for consideration by the directors, Styert said.

Under the terms of the contract, the institution's sewer rental rate would be figured on the "industrial rate," determined by the quantity of water used at the hospital.

On the present basis of consumption, Styert said, the proposal if accepted by the directors, would boost sewer department receipts approximately $2,500 annually.

OAKLAND, Cal. —(U.P.)— The Oakland Navy Mothers Club, the Oakland Foreign Trade and Harbor Club and 30 other civic and fraternal organizations of the city are backing an effort to have one of the 35 new naval cruisers now being built named the U. S. S. Oakland.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A new synthetic chemical that might make circus strong women out of ordinary members of the feminine sex has been tested at Cornell university medical college here.

The chemical is testosterone,

the male sex hormone. It is manufactured synthetically, in test tubes, from ordinary chemicals that are not obtained from living beings.

This substance was injected into the blood stream of guinea pigs by George N. Papanicolaou and Emil A. Falk. Prolonged injection strengthened the muscles in pigs of both sexes. In particular, the jaw muscles became larger.

This chemical is believed to explain the difference in muscular strength of men and women. Although it is a natural male product, women also have a little. Extra production of it would go far to explain the occasional feminine muscular prodigy.

The Cornell experiments are aimed at using the chemical for muscular deficiency. General muscular weakness is a symptom in more than one disease. The artificial male chemical may be the right medicine.

No investigation has been made of giving it to healthy persons to build greater strength. In general, drugs do not add to the abilities of healthy persons.

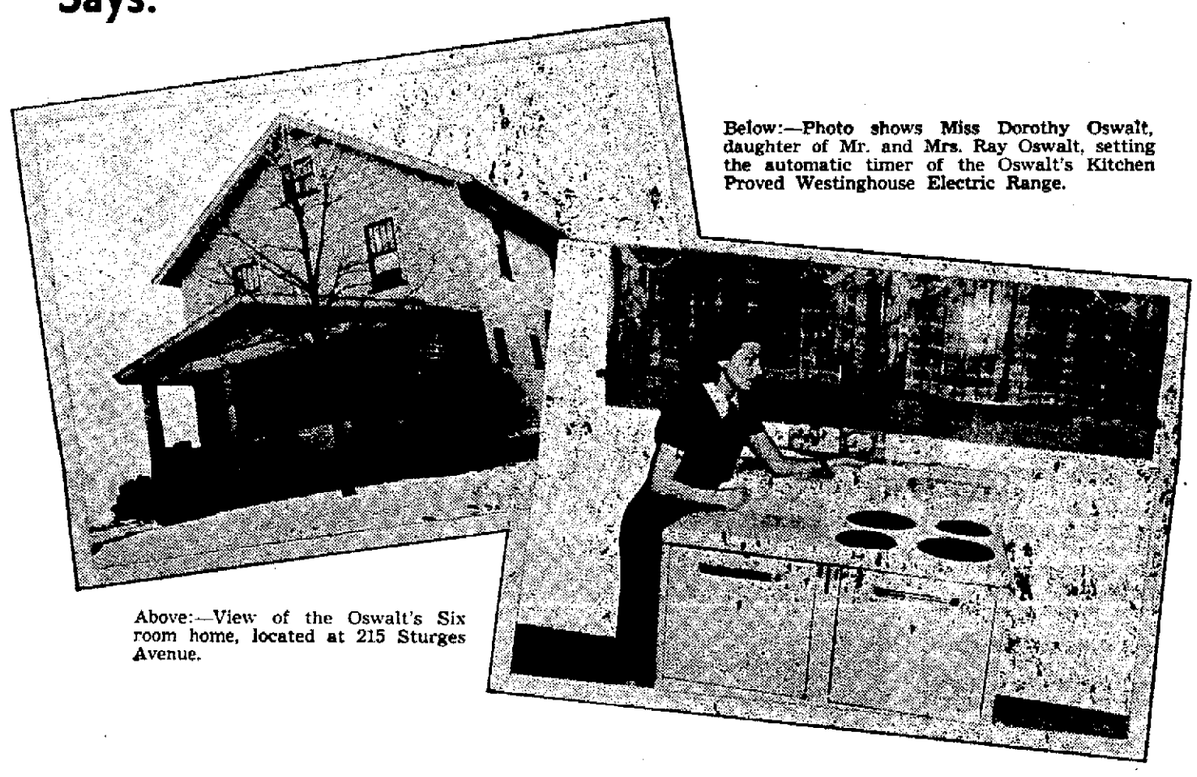
Who Is the Proud Owner Of a Kitchen-Proved Westinghouse Range,



Below:—Photo shows Miss Dorothy Oswalt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Oswalt, setting the automatic timer of the Oswalt's Kitchen Proved Westinghouse Electric Range.

"I WAS SURPRISED TO LEARN HOW LITTLE IT COST TO COOK ELECTRICALLY . . . ONLY $2.63 A MONTH FOR A FAMILY OF FIVE!"

"Like many other homemakers, I always thought it would be expensive to cook with an electric range. But that was before I purchased my new Westinghouse. I kept close track of my electric service bills and found that they increased only 60 cents a week on an average after my new range was installed. And part of that was due, I know, to the fact that I have other electrical appliances, such as an electrical refrigerator, iron, washer, etc. I enjoy the cleanliness, of cooking electrically . . . My family have enjoyed the flavor and tenderness of the roasts . . . and the automatic controlled heat gives me more time for other household tasks."

Deep-Well Cooking Adds Zest to Foods

Modern electric ranges offer a deep-well cooker which is a money-saver, time-saver, and constant delight to any owner. It's a budgeter's good luck that so many of the popular, homely foods are the very ones to cook to perfection in that deep-well of the electric range.

Juicy pot roasts—stews that are a tempting medley of flavors, chicken fricassee with dumplings as light as cake—these are food dreams that come true through deep-well cookery.

Most of these foods can be cooked on low heat, which uses very little current. Another cheerful fact about low heat cooking in the deep-well—it's so accurately controlled that it does away with watching and stirring. You can forget your dinner while it's cooking.

Most cooker wells are equipped with the kettle, a perforated rack or trivet for holding meat or vegetables off the bottom of the kettle, a pudding pan, and in some cases, a rack high enough to be placed over the food in the bottom of the cooker to furnish a level base for the pudding or vegetable pan.

Used as a steamer, half a dozen varieties of vegetables—even mild and strong-flavored ones in combination—may be cooked together. Prepare vegetables which will cook in about the same amount of time, place in layers, and add a small amount of water—about a cup—in the bottom of the cooker.

Turn to high or start until steam comes merrily forth, then turn switch to low or cook until vegetables are tender. Do not overcook vegetables. Moderns prefer firm, crisp, fresh-colored vegetables, rather than limp, discolored ones.

All of the not-so-tender cuts of meat are ideal for deep-well meals—pot roasts, briskets, or short ribs of beef, corned beef, shoulder, shoulder chops, cottage hams, fowl. If you're cooking vegetables and a dessert along with the meat, the cooker kettle will hold up to 3 pounds of meat, or a 3½ pound fowl—and there will be generous servings of everything else for a family of four of five.

If you've never gone in for steamed desserts—you're due for a pleasant surprise. Crumb and batter puddings, tapioca and rice puddings, the whole list of delicious plum puddings—all these can be cooked in that deep-well of your electric range.

The well is an excellent sterilizer for babies' bottles—and an ideal sterilizer for electric canning, too. Don't fail to become acquanted with the feats of cookery legerdemain performed by deep-well cookers! Try these deep-well menus and recipes!

SEASONAL ICING

Use strawberry frosting for your next batch of white cakes. Mix a third of a cup of crushed berries with two cups of confectioner's sugar. Add two teaspoons of lemon juice. Mix until creamy and then carefully ice the cakes.

Cocktail tid-bit: Spread thin slices of boiled tongue with salad dressing. Sprinkle with chopped pickle and finely-minced onion. Roll and wrap each slice in waxed paper. Chill. Then, using a sharp knife, cut each roll in half. Dip in salad dressing. Cover with minced celery and parsley combined. Insert wooden picks.

Electric Cooking Cool

By NORMA NEWTON in McCall's

The thing I like about electric ranges is that while they are grand looking, they are even better acting. And to my mind they act their prettiest in summer.

Take the matter of ovens. You don't need a very long memory to recall the time when ovens were, practically speaking, "sewed up for the summer." We used them only under stern compulsion.

But in these more fortunate days, we use the oven of electric ranges just as freely in summer as we do in winter.

Lots of work has gone into making ovens more usable in summer—insulation to keep the heat in the oven where it belongs, and time and temperature controls that take over the burden of watching.

And these new developments in the construction of ovens have led to easier ways to use them. For instance, cold oven meals, which seem to me the perfect answer to the hot-food-cool-cook problem, are simply entire meals that are placed one at a time in a cold oven.

The switch is then turned to the "bake" position, the temperature control and time clock properly set, and the oven automatically does the rest.

It is definitely cooling merely to know your mind and body are free of all responsibility until time to set the table.

Of course, thermostats, or heat controls, have taken the guesswork out of all sorts of baking. With thermostatic control and exact and level measurements, the most amateur cook can be fairly certain of uniformly good results each time she uses any certain recipe.

And with a kitchen that stays cool even with the oven going full tilt for hours, dreaded summer bakings become pretty easy. It's a pleasure to broil and bake in the summer—if the range is electric. An electric range means that the food broils and bakes—not you.

Try a Mansfield News-Journal Classified Ad for Quick Results.

Never melt fat to be used in cake or cookies. Cream it by pressing it against the side of a bowl with a large spoon. The process may be hastened by allowing the butter to stand until it is slightly soft. Select a spoon that is easy to hold so that the hand will not tire. Long, round-handled metal or wooden spoons with large, slotted bowls are best.

ASKS CONTRACT WITH HOSPITAL

City Begins Negotiations for Monthly Sewer Rental Fee of $200.

City officials today were negotiating with directors of Mansfield General hospital for the establishing of a sewer rental contract for the institution calling for an industrial rate of approximately $200 per month.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said he had written officials of the hospital explaining that the proposal was based on the recent findings by state examiners, in which they criticized the sewage department for not charging the hospital for sewer rental.

A proposal based on the present sewer rental ordinance, passed in March, 1937, was forwarded to Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, hospital superintendent, for consideration by the directors, Styert said.

Under the terms of the contract, the institution's sewer rental rate would be figured on the "industrial rate," determined by the quantity of water used at the hospital.

On the present basis of consumption, Styert said, the proposal if accepted by the directors, would boost sewer department receipts approximately $2,500 annually.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A new synthetic chemical that might make circus strong women out of ordinary members of the feminine sex has been tested at Cornell university medical college here.

The chemical is testosterone,

the male sex hormone. It is manufactured synthetically, in test tubes, from ordinary chemicals that are not obtained from living beings.

This substance was injected into the blood stream of guinea pigs by George N. Papanicolaou and Emil A. Falk. Prolonged injection strengthened the muscles in pigs of both sexes. In particular, the jaw muscles became larger.

This chemical is believed to explain the difference in muscular strength of men and women. Although it is a natural male product, women also have a little. Extra production of it would go far to explain the occasional feminine muscular prodigy.

The Cornell experiments are aimed at using the chemical for muscular deficiency. General muscular weakness is a symptom in more than one disease. The artificial male chemical may be the right medicine.

No investigation has been made of giving it to healthy persons to build greater strength. In general, drugs do not add to the abilities of healthy persons.

"I WAS SURPRISED TO LEARN HOW LITTLE IT COST TO COOK ELECTRICALLY... ONLY $2.63 A MONTH FOR A FAMILY OF FIVE!"

"Like many other homemakers, I always thought it would be expensive to cook with an electric range. But that was before I purchased my new Westinghouse. I kept close track of my electric service bills and found that they increased only 60 cents a week on an average after my new range was installed. And part of that was due, I know, to the fact that I have other electrical appliances, such as an electrical refrigerator, iron, washer, etc. I enjoy the cleanliness, of cooking electrically . . . My family have enjoyed the flavor and tenderness of the roasts . . . and the automatic controlled heat gives me more time for other household tasks."

CHAPTER XXI

"Did Miss Hardwicke give you any explanation of why she was going down to see her cousin in the middle of the night?"

"No, she didn't tell me anything."

"But you had your own ideas on the subject. Do you mind telling us what they were?"

Algy hesitated.

"It's rather difficult to say. I was a good deal concerned about Miss Hardwicke. She is very young, her people are abroad, and I had an idea that she was letting herself get mixed up in something that might — involve her in some unpleasantness. As soon as I guessed we were going to Cole Lester I thought it was something to do with Lady Colesborough. I had to let her go off into the grounds by herself, but I didn't feel at all happy about it, and as soon as I thought it was safe I followed her."

Colonel Anstruther returned to the statement. "You say you followed Miss Hardwicke up the drive, and afterwards along the path that skirts the house Did you know the place? Had you ever been there before?"

"No."

"Then how did you find your way?"

The question came at him sharply, but Algy took it with a smile

"I had a torch, sir. I didn't use it more than I could help, because I didn't want Miss Hardwicke to know that I was following her."

"And you maintain that you followed Miss Hardwicke all the way?"

"Oh, yes—definitely."

Mr. Brooks spoke in his quiet voice.

"Taking into account the time that passed before you followed Miss Hardwicke, would it have been posible for you to reach the far side of the yew hedge by the time the shot was fired?"

"Oh, no—certainly not."

"But if a shorter time had elapsed—if you had followed Miss Hardwicke immediately, then it would have been possible?"

"No I should still have been behind Miss Hardwicke and she was certainly not more than half way down the tunnel when she heard the shot."

"Mr Somers. are you aware that the path which skirts the house divides at a point level with the terrace?"

"I know it now, but I knew nothing about it last night"

"Miss Hardwicke took the right fork and came out upon the lawn. If you had taken the left fork you would have passed the end of the yew hedge and come out upon the strip of grass behind the rose garden. You know that now, don't you?"

"Yes, I know it now."

"But you didn't know it last night?"

"How could I know it? The place was utterly strange to me."

"You had never been there before?" The sneer was still in Colonel Anstruther's voice.

"No, I had never been there before"

Mr Brook took up the question.

"You had never met Lady Colesborough in these grounds?"

Algy smiled and answered, "I had met Lady Colesborough exactly three times before last night— twice at a night club, the Ducks and Drakes, where she was with a party and I was with Miss Hardwicke, and once at the flat of some cousins of mine, the Westgates, where we dined at the same table and I afterwards talked to her for about ten minutes in the midst of a crowd of people."

"You haven't answered my question, Mr. Somers."

"I thought I had I have certainly never have met Lady Colesborough either here or anywhere else, if by that you mean a clandestine meeting"

"And you have never been to Cole Lester before?"

"I have said so quite a number of times."

"But if you had been here before—if you were familiar with these grounds — you will agree that you could have reached the strip of grass beyond the yew hedge before the shot was fired?"

"I'm not inclined to agree to a purely hypothetical case." Algy said good-naturedly.

"Will you agree that a man who took the left fork would naturally outstrip anyone who, taking the right-hand turn, would have to find their way across the lawn to the entrance of the yew walk?"

"No, I don't agree at all. I should think that the distance would be about equal."

"But if the man who took the left-hand fork had a torch and used it, and if he ran, I think you will have to admit that he could have reached the place where the shot was fired in plenty of time to meet Sir Francis, snatch his pistol, and fire that shot"

"Well, I don't know that I'm admitting that either," said Algy. "Lady Colesborough says the man she went to meet was at the window in the yew hedge when she got there. She doesn't say anything about his coming up at a run and snatching the pistol. From what she told me, she and Mr. Zero were talking through the window and she was handing over a package of letters, when she heard someone running and Sir Francis arrived on the scene. Isn't that what she says in her statement?"

Mr. Brook nodded.

"Sir Francis came from the right. He must have turned right at the path and skirted the rose garden in that direction. Anyone who followed the path which you and Miss Hardwicke took would have skirted the rose garden on the left and come out onto the grass on that side. Mr. Zero would almost certainly have come that way, because it was the shortest and most direct route between the meeting-place and the road, where he would naturally have left a car. You did not observe any other car?"

Algy shook his head.

"There was no other car within range of my headlights."

"Mr. Somers, did you hear a car at any time either before the shot was fired or afterwards — especially afterwards? If Mr. Zero did not remain at Cole Lester he must have got away — probably by car. Did you hear any car?"

* * *

Algy said, "Yes, I did," and thought how convenient a lie it must sound — 'If Mr. Zero left Cole Lester, he must have left by car. Did you hear a car?—Yes, I did...' It happened to be the truth, but there were times when the truth sounded strange. He gave a short laugh and added, "You won't believe it, but it's perfectly true — I did hear a car, though I didn't take any notice at the time. It was just before we met Sturrock and the servants. Miss Hardwicke may have heard it, too."

Inspector Boyce turned in his chair. He addressed the Chief Constable.

"I put the question to her myself, sir, and she said she hadn't noticed anything. And the servants, they didn't notice anything either."

"They had plenty to think about," said Algy. "I didn't remember it myself until you asked me, but I'm quite prepared to swear to it now. I did hear a car, and it was going back the way we came."

"Suggesting that Mr. Zero had run his car on a bit and left it turned all ready to go back to town again?" said Mr. Brook.

Algy admitted a faint tone of sarcasm to his voice.

"I won't go so far as that—but then I haven't your imagination."

Mr. Brook smiled faintly.

"Imagination may be very useful," he said.

The smile faded from Mr. Brook's eyes. He said to Algy, "Now I want to ask whether you noticed what time it was when Miss Hardwicke left you to find her way up to the drive last night."

Algy had a sudden conviction that the answer to this question was going to matter a great deal. If he hadn't known the answer, it wouldn't have mattered. But he did know it, and it came home to him that if he gave it he might be landing himself in trouble, and if he hesitated it was bound to make a very bad impression.

He said without any perceptible pause, "I looked at the clock when Miss Hardwicke got out of the car, and it was just on twelve."

Colonel Anstruther said explosively, "What do you mean by just on twelve, Sir? Can't you be accurate?"

Algy looked in his direction. The old boy was definitely hostile. He made his voice as deferential as he could and apologized.

"I'm sorry sir. It was between one and two minutes to twelve."

"Yes," said Mr. Brook—"that is Miss Hardwicke's recollection also. How long did you wait before you followed her?"

"I gave her a couple of minutes."

"So you left the car at twelve o'clock. How long do you suppose it would take you to reach the strip of grass beyond the yew hedge?"

"I haven't timed it," said Algy. "I suppose you have."

Mr. Brook nodded.

Couldn't Take Walks In Sun-Shine and Air

Least Exertion Brought Breath Shortness.

Watched Diet World's Tonic Relieved Constipation—Gas No Longer Prevents Daily Walks in Sunshine

Mrs Clara Coley of R D No 4 Coshocton Ohio loved to take daily walks in the healthy fresh air and cheerful sunshine- but the least exertion affected her breathing Her predicament shows how an excellent health promoting habit was interfered with and how occasional constipation rears its ugly head into the picture

"I always loved taking long walks in the open air The bright sunshine and listening to singing of birds gave me a cheerful and happy feeling But now for a long time I've been forced to give up this pleasure because the slightest exertion would result in shortness of breath Even though I ate sparingly the after effect was always gas and a feeling of pressure in my stomach I had dizzy and bilious spells that made walking in traffic quite dangerous I was always nervous and jumpy and felt quite blue Of course I suffered from never ending constipation but thought that was a regular condition for women of my age It was very discouraging to feel that here was Mother Nature offering me the priceless tonic of sunshine and fresh air and me not able to accept it because of my run down condition

"My neighbor advised World's Tonic and I started using it a month ago At once my constipated state took a tremendous change for the better I became enthusiastic and watched my diet closer The dizzy and bilious spells came less and less frequent The absence of gas relieved my breathing and my nervous state became much quieter Every day now I can take lovely long walks in the open air. It's just glorious to feel that a woman of my age can find it possible to enjoy such good health again."

World's Tonic is double acting It offers free and easy relief from constipation and acts as a mild diuretic to the kidneys

It's dangerous to RUN LOW ON OIL. You can just about wreck your engine if you do. New bearings cost plenty. So do new rings and pistons.

To keep your car out of the shop, we Shell dealers make this proposition:

Drive into any one of our stations. If we don't check your oil—and you call us—we'll bring your oil level right up to the full mark free.

We'll put in Golden Shell, too—the oil that has been refined especially for today's stop-and-go driving.

Maybe you never knew that stop and go calls for a certain kind of oil. Well, it does—and here's the reason why:

You average ten cold starts a day. If your oil is slow-flowing, one start can cause as much wear as 50 miles of steady running.

Golden Shell changes this. It's fast-flowing. The second you step on your starter, it coats each engine part with a tough oil film that doesn't break down . . . even under the heat of your steady running.

Charge Relief Workers Spread Recovery Propaganda

HOUSE HEARS G. O. P. BLAST AT SPENDING

Dem Leader Charges Industry Plans Drive to Sabotage Roosevelt Program.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Republican members of the house charged today that relief workers were distributing propaganda favoring President Roosevelt's $4,512,000,000 recovery program.

Their charges countered a claim by House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, D., Tex., that congress is about to be deluged with a flood of propaganda against the New Deal's lending-spending program. He said that "big corporations" are trying to sabotage it.

Hit Mail, Petitions.

Rep. John Taber, R., N. Y., sponsor of the motion that recommitted the administration's reorganization bill, said that his mail was filled with "propaganda prepared in Harry Hopkins' (WPA administrator) own office." Rep. Earl C. Michener, R., Mich., said that petitions were being circulated by Works Progress Administration employes asking congress to support the president's program.

Taber's and Michener's charges were made shortly after Rayburn read a letter that had been sent to Mr. Roosevelt by an unidentified individual asserting that "a large corporation in Detroit" was directing a campaign designed to defeat any bills on the recovery program.

Taber said that he had received many letters urging his support of the program. They are identical, down to their advice that the recipient "send copies of this to four others," he said.

"They are using relief funds to send this stuff out," he charged.

Ickes Called.

The house appropriations subcommittee, which is drafting a bill to provide the money for the huge lending-spending program, summoned Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes to testify today on the need for the $1,000,000,000 public works fund that Mr. Roosevelt has requested.

Rep. Alfred F. Beiter, D. N. Y., has introduced a bill to make the PWA a permanent agency under the interior department and to extend its functions. It was understood to have the endorsement of Ickes.

The bill would reconstitute the WPA with power:

1. To construct and repair public facilities for lease.
2. To make recoverable advances for temporary operation of projects to protect the government's investment.
3. To sell its own securities on the open market.
4. To exchange the securities it has acquired from states and municipalities for other securities.

CIO Scores Plan To Buy Fords For Work Guarantee

(By United Press)

DEARBORN, Mich.—United Automobile Workers' spokesmen today ridiculed the plan of an independent union that calls for Ford Motor company employes to buy a Ford car every two years in exchange for a guarantee of steady work and a $1,500 annual minimum wage.

Without commenting on the proposition, Henry Ford, the billionaire manufacturer and severe critic of many phases of the New Deal, his son Edsel Ford, and William J. Cameron, company executive, prepared to leave for Washington for a luncheon meeting with President Roosevelt Wednesday.

Richard T. Frangensteen, assistant president of the UAW which won contracts from every major automobile manufacturer except Ford, said:

"The UAW would not accept so low an annual wage. "It is lower than the lowest accepted as an American standard of living!"

Up and Down THE STREET

Eight Mansfield women are walking around town with "clocks" fastened to their pedal extremities—and they aren't the clocks on their hose. A Main street store is trying a novel stunt to test the durability of its favorite brand of hose. The eight women—most of whom are on their feet the greater part of the day—are wearing pedometers in order to learn how many miles the wearer can get out of a pair of hose—snags and runs not counted. The testers have to wear the hose continuously, washing them each night and wearing them all day, with the pedometer fastened to hose supporters. With every step the clock-like devise registers—just like a taxicab meter. But in this case the hose are "on the house."

Boys in a west end neighborhood had a "snappy" time at the expense of motorists the other night. The youngsters, who found a long strip of rubber at a tire company dump, stretched it across a dark street, and as the cars hit the elastic band, the strip was released with a bang, sounding like a blowout. Most of the drivers stopped to check their tires, while the pranksters did their chuckling while hiding in nearby bushes.

In conjunction with the celebration here over the week-end of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Northwest Territory, students in two history classes at John Simpson Junior high school, taught by Edwin Fensch, will distribute mimeographed copies of the early history of Mansfield. The material for the book was gathered by the students from old histories of the county and newspaper articles. The book will be distributed Friday.

D. D. Orewiler, superintendent of city streets, went "fence borrowing" today as he prepared Central park for the city's Northwest Territory celebration next Monday. Planning to erect a rail fence along the east side of the park to add more of the pioneer touch, Orewiler sought the loan of fence rails from farmers near Mansfield until after the celebration. Wood slabs, purchased from a sawmill, had been erected as stockades today in front of the four cannons in the park.

FAIR TRADE CODE TO BE DRAWN FOR U. S. AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

(By United Press)

DETROIT—The automobile industry will walk under the wing of the federal trade commission today by formulating a fair trade code reminiscent of the NRA.

The occasion was a fair trade conference conducted by Charles H. March, member of the trade commission, in conjunction with the 21st annual convention of the National Automobile Dealers association.

The code, to be enforced by the commission, will include rules governing every phase of automobile retailing from manufacturer-dealer relations to used car advertising.

Dealers and manufacturers and other members of the industry will express their views at today's conference. The commission then will draw up a code and enforce it.

Formulation of a fair trade code coincided with commission plans for a sweeping investigation of relations between automobile manufacturers and dealers. This investigation was authorized by a resolution passed last month by congress.

Meanwhile, advocates of various schemes for lifting the nation out of the depression through junking used cars, set up headquarters and organized lobbying campaigns to get their plans approved by the convention.

It was understood that the code would be similar to the one which governed the industry under the National Recovery Administration with the exception that it would not undertake to fix prices. March said that the scope of the code would be sufficiently broad as to cover manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers.

ORDER TO END 13-YEAR PERIOD OF LITIGATION

Schaber Says Payments to Be Started in 90 Days; 44 Areas Affected.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The 14-year old Ohio Bell telephone statewide rate case was settled today when the state utilities commission formally approved the essentials of a compromise agreement previously reached by the attorney general and the company.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Chairman Charles F. Schaber said the state utilities commission would end more than 13 years of litigation today by ordering refunds totaling $7,225,000 to approximately 600,000 Ohio Bell Telephone company subscribers.

Schaber said payments would be started within 90 days and continue for one year. Money which the company is unable to disburse within 12 months will be turned over to the treasury of the city or county in which the subscriber resided between 1925-32, when the commission contended excessive charges were levied.

The settlement figure was accepted, Schaber said, after the commission approved recommendations agreed upon last Thursday by the attorney general and counsel for the telephone company.

These stipulated that no additional testimony be introduced, and agreed upon methods of establishing property valuation and depreciation.

Collected Under Bond.

The refund order affects 44 exchange areas in the state, and embraces various types of service. Charges which the commission contended were excessive were under bond pending disposition of the suit.

"Some of the points involved in the settlement have been unchanged since the commission issued its earlier order of refund (in October, 1934)" Schaber said. "Certain concessions have been made on other issues, but the final figure, we believe, is fair and satisfactory."

The Ohio Bell rate case was opened Oct. 14, 1924, upon the commission's own motion, following a series of consolidations throughout the state.

In January, 1934, the commission ordered the company to refund $13,289,172, which it contended had accrued from excessive charges from 1925-32, inclusive. Later this figure was reduced to $11,832,264.

The state supreme court upheld the commission's refund order in that amount, but the U. S. supreme court reversed, and remanded the action for further hearing.

The commission reopened the case for a brief session, and recessed to give opposing counsel an opportunity to evolve a compromise settlement.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Bribe Offer Hints and Reprisal Threats Over Reform Vote Need Probe

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—There is no reason why the Senate should not investigate the recent telegraphic lobby against the reorganization bill, but certainly the boys should not be permitted to call it a day after they have finished with the national committee to uphold constitutional government.

The case cannot be regarded as closed until the statesmen have made an equally thorough and equally hostile and harassing inquiry into the basis, if any, for certain reports which were carried out of Washington on the day of the vote. These reports were much more grave than the mere news that senators were being swamped with telegrams.

They reflected on the sacred honor of the Senate itself, and surely the Senate, wearing its honor on its sleeve, cannot honorably ignore them. It was reported on that day that White House messengers were busy on the hill and Jimmy Roosevelt was mentioned by name as one of those who lobbied for the bill. The others were not mentioned by name. They seemed to be sinister and mysterious figures, but the committee could easily identify them and drag from them the details of their conversations with the statesmen regarding their position on that bill.

A broad interpretation of the news of Washington as the bill went to a vote would have it that senators were being offered something mighty like bribes to vote for the bill and threatened with reprisals by the Administration should they vote wrong. All right, who were the messengers and precisely what did they say to what senators? What promises did the make? Did the promises, if any, involve chunks of public money for distribution in their states to help the re-election, and, if so, why should the committee bother with anything so petty as a mere overnight paper organization which kicked up a public alarm and whose opinion of the bill later was confirmed by the House of Representatives?

It may be remembered that after the Senate had passed the bill the President remarked that the vote proved they could not be purchased. But it may be remembered further that, in view of the reports about the White House lobby, many persons believe it proved exactly the opposite.

The committee has powers newspapers reporters have not. Yet, reporters on the hill observed or were told of the operations of a lobby, which, if it had been working in the same way for the other side of the question, would now be laid over a barrel. If the newspapermen could learn about this with their limited privileges, then the senators must have heard of it, and if the reports are true, then some members of the Senate are guilty of withholding information which they ought to volunteer.

The fact that the organization which lobbied against the bill included an "ex-convict" is much less evil than it sound when it is understood that Dr. Edward A. Rumley, the "ex-convict," was convicted under a war-time act and was pardoned later. There was an ex-convict in the House of Representatives a few years ago, and there are members of the Senate at present whose records show dealings which, in slightly different circumstances, might have made convicts of them.

So on that score the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government need feel only the most nominal embarrassment with respect to Rumley's past, which is immaterial and shouldn't have been mentioned unless the Senate is willing to inspect the career of its own members. If smearing fair play in this investigation, then it should be impartial.

Here is a case in which the Lobby Committee is ignoring reports, apparently based on information available to every senator. The reports amount to charges that senators were tempted with inducements or threatened with political punishment. Those senators and the agents of the lobby are all at hand for questioning any time the Lobby Committee wants to get at the truth.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—However the Jackie Coogan affair comes out in the courts, there's one bright angle: there's money to fight about. This isn't always true, as Marie Osborne can testify. As "Baby Marie Osborne" of the silents she was a bright little twinkler—now she's Ginger Rogers' stand-in and occasionally an actress.

Some of the stars could take lessons in poise from the dress extras on their sets . . . Watched a white-tie-and-tailed gent on "Garden of the Moon" between scenes and from his carriage and dignity he could have been pegged as at least a leading man—but when the cameras started in the ballroom scene he merely gave his arm to a lady, stepped with her across the floor, and walked out of the picture — far in the background.

"Garden of the Moon," although not identified as such, is supposed to represent a Los Angeles night spot like the Cocoanut Grove. . . . That spot, however, already is featured—by name—in another current film, which will be previewed in the hotel housing the nitery, with subsequent festivities in the Grove itself. . . . This trick of previewing in the actual locale of a picture is being carried to extraordinary lengths, what with the premiere of "Gold Is Where You Find It" in Weaverville, and some talk (mostly funny) about taking "Spawn of the North" to Alaska for the first showing. . . . The idea, fortunately, didn't occur to anybody for "Dante's Inferno," but "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" is coming up. (James, my diving suit!)

Isn't Life Wonderful department: Kay Francis quoted in a studio piece—"My role in 'Dr. Monica' taught me the beauty and worth of self-sacrifice, etc. etc." Some day a star is actually going to say something like that but it won't reach print—because the interviewer will pass out from shock.

Bernarr Macfadden, the publisher and "physical culturist," had lunch with James Cagney and a small party at the studio commissary. . . . Green salads sprouted up before most of the guests as if through prearranged magic but the Macfadden order was spinach, tomatoes, potatoes — and lobster Newburgh in pattie shell!

That new "cycle" is under way now — the great outdoor stuff: "Northwest Passage," "Spawn of the North," "Sea of Grass," "Union Pacific," "Dodge City," "The Texans," and "The Rains Came," "Kim," "Stanley and Livingstone."

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

APRIL 25

I GOT UP early so that I could be on hand to help my neighbor move. I saw the faint hint of red in the eastern sky. The birds began to sing, very drowsily at first. I heard the call of a ringneck pheasant from a wooded thicket. A small shower in the night—rival of the dew—had freshened all the fields and meadows. I felt "the breezy call of incense breathing morn."

I went on my way hesitatingly, for this task of moving my neighbor concerned me much. I did not want to see him go. He and his family were folks I always loved to visit. They gave me something I could not feel in any other house—since I left home; a strange uplift of soul that made me happy. But they move today, and I must step more lively

The truck had backed its rear end up against the porch and three men were busily placing heavy pieces of furniture on the front. My neighbor greeted me with a smile, but I could scarcely return it. I knew he did not want to leave, because the best part of his life was centered on this little farm Here, with his own hands, he had built and beautified his home, planted a lovely orchard, tiled thoroughly his precious acres — admired the woodlot and kept it untouched. Here three of his children had been born.

Often, when the bloom was on the apple orchard I saw him down among them, touching this branch and caressing that one; saw him smell their fragrance many times until their pink and white loveliness was more than he could bear, and tears would come· saw him walk with his wife through lanes of misty moonlit white—a fairyland that he himself had made and tended.

The truck was loaded. He gave final directions to the driver. Each member of his family was busy loading the family car with the most precious of their little personal things The children were eager Moving day was a great day of excitement for them But all was ready and Daddy had not come

"Where's Daddy?" came the shout. "Come on let's go'"

Across the open field the farmer came into view. He stopped upon the crest of a knoll and looked around, as I have seen him do so many times,—getting a panoramic view of the woods, the fields, the orchard that had been his own His head was up He was taking it on the chin I saw him stride toward his family in the car and turned away My eyes were wet . . . and I was not ashamed

STATE, FEDERAL REGIMES RIPPED IN OHIO TALKS

Roosevelt, Davey Come in For Blasts as G. O. P. Speakers Open Broadsides.

(By United Press)

The national and state Democratic administrations became the objects of attack from Republican speakers today as a round of stump speeches quickened the pace of early primary campaigning.

While Republican opponents assailed him and the national adminstration, Gov. Martin L. Davey continued with his weekly radio broadcasts in Cincinnati, stressing the need for improvement of the state's welfare institution buildings.

In Bowling Green, John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, criticized the Roosevelt administration on three fronts: the new spending program; restriction of agricultural production; and the reciprocal trade program.

Hits State Bids.

John W. Bricker, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, speaking at Sandusky, charged the Davey administration with "willful and purposeful" failure to enforce standard competitive bidding practices, and outlined a four-point program of highway reform.

Governor Davey said that despite handicaps the state now is spending $1,000,000 a year less for insane patient care and claimed "remarkably good business administration" for the state welfare department. He renewed his plea for a welfare building program.

Hamilton said the president had nearly $4,000,000,000 as an unexpended balance from relief funds April 1 and asked why the president failed to use funds last fall when the business recession started," if he thinks spending is the cure."

Attacking the farm program, he asked.

"Why limit production at home when reciprocal trade agreements allow easy entry of foreing farm produce? Republicans should demand an open public hearing on trade treaties with production cost and American standards of living taken into consideration."

Bricker proposed for the state the following highway purchase program:

1. That comparable road materials be placed in competiton with each other.

2. That road projects be large enough to attract bidders throughout the state.

3. That highway specifications be simplified to reduce the number of "special mixes."

4. That projects be planned to let an entire construction job at one time, eliminating the practice of widening a road under one contract and later awarding another contract for resurfacing the same road.

Among the Mansfield representatives at the meeting were Earl A. McFarland, former mayor; Phlip Wolfe, service-safety director during the latter part of Mayor McFarland's administration, and Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Young. Mrs. Young is secretary of the Richland county Republican central committee.

COMPETITION GETS BLAME IN RAIL PROBLEM

Undirected Growth of Air, Highway, Water Travel Cited by Eastman.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO — Interstate Commerce Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman said today the nation's transportation problems can be traced to the development of a ruinous competition that "just grew like Topsy."

The former federal co-ordinator of transportation and a member of President Roosevelt's three-man committee named to propose remedies for the present critical railroad situation told the Chicago Traffic club that the root of the present railroad problem lies in the undirected growth of highway, air, water and pipeline competition.

He urged establishment of a transportation authority to promote the more efficient use of railroad facilities, reduce competition and co-ordinate all transportation activities.

He also recommended a broadening of the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission to give it power to approve or disapprove, and even to order, under certain conditions, the recommendation of the transportation authority.

Hits Lack of Control.

"The extraordinary development of transportation facilities of all sorts which has taken place in this country in the past 20 or so years has gone ahead with little direction or control, with little forethought of the probable results, and with little anticipation of the dangers that might arise, and which actually did arise and might have been avoided, but were not," Eastman said.

"In consequence, a competition was created which went beyond the bounds of reason and became unnecessarily wasteful and destructful.

"Each kind of carrier can do certain things better than any of the others. There also is a wide field in which competition can be reasonable and desirable. The trouble is that it now goes far beyond such limits.

"The railroads undertake to compete for traffic which some other kind of carrier can handle much more efficiently and the other carriers do the same under reverse conditions. The result is that all handle much traffic with little or no profit, or at an actual loss."

The carriers themselves "cannot reasonably be expected to provide the leadership to cure this situation," Eastman declared, because their individual interests are "too diverse and conflicting." The government, through a transportation authority, should provide this leadership," he said.

JURY CONVENES

Light Schedule Faces Panel as April Term Opens.

Convening this morning in the first session in the April term of court, the Richland county petit jury was faced with a light schedule of cases this week.

Although seven suits had been set for hearing from Tuesday through Thursday, most of them have been settled or continued, C. A. McKinley, assignment clerk, said today.

The jury today heard arguments in a $250 judgment suit brought against E. D. Mitchell by Della Humphrey. Attys. Knisely and Coble of Galion represented the plaintiff, and Atty J. V. Will was counsel for Mitchell.

Germans Building Conic Towers as Air Raid Defense

BERLIN —(INS)— On the theory that bomb-proof dugouts to protect people in case of air-attacks are becoming obsolete, new German factories are building conic towers, instead, with pointed tops, believing they offer the most difficult targets for bombing planes.

A machine factory in the north of Berlin recently erected a tower, twenty-three meters high and with accommodations for about 300 workers. The tower contains several floors connected by a winding stair-case.

Builders of the conic tower and air-raid experts believe that bombs thrown on the tower will either miss it or skid down along the smooth surface of the structure without exploding.

A model conic tower was exhibited at the famous Leipzig Fair recently.

TRI-COUNTY CONVENTION

SHELBY—The Tri-County convention opened here at 1:30 p. m. today at the K. of P. lodge. The convention will close this evening with an open house session, following initiatory work beginning at 7:30 p. m.

NORRIS TO VOTE 'NO' ON BIGGER NAVY MEASURE

Roosevelt Booster Declares Congress Already Has Voted Enough Funds.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Senator Norris (Ind., Neb.), usually an ardent administration supporter, said today he would vote against President Roosevelt's naval expansion bill.

Norris' statement that "we have already voted enough money for an adequate navy" came during congressional discussion of several phases of foreign relations.

In the house, members of the foreign affairs committee expected to learn whether the state department officially had branded Japan and Italy as treaty violators.

Chairman McReynolds (D., Tenn.) had received the department's response to a request by Representative Scott (D., Cal.) that treaty violators be identified specifically. McReynolds said the reply was not momentous, but he refrained from showing it to committee before their meeting.

Norris based part of his opposition to the navy bill on the possibility that "if we start to build a whole lot of battleships, we may find by the time they are built that the battleship is out of date as a weapon of naval warfare."

Program 'Too Big.'

The veterans Nebraskan said he would not oppose some expansion in the navy's air force, but declared the proposed $1,156,000,000 bill for ships and planes together is "too big."

Some time ago, Norris had said he favored a strong navy because "Japan is running amuck."

The senate heard other criticism of the naval expansion measure, and Senator Nye (R., N. D.), an opponent, predicted a vote would not be reached before Friday.

Nye also told reporters he and other interested senators may make a canvass soon to determine how much support would be given a proposal to relax the neutrality act to permit arms shipments to Spain.

Chairman Pittman (D., Nev.) predicted meanwhile that the senate foreign relations committee would give early approval to a measure requiring federal registration of all foreign propagandists.

The bill, previously passed by the house, has been dormant for several months.

Domestic relief needs were considered further today by a house appropriations subcommittee. Secretary Wallace testified yesterday that the $175,000,000 asked for the farm security administration would help about half the 360,000 farm families who have asked relief.

The house reversed two earlier decisions and agreed, by a 159-152 vote, to appropriate $2,613,000 to begin work on the Tennessee Valley Authority's proposed dam near Gilbertsville, Ky., the senate already had approved the item.

2 BOYS IN COURT

Pair Arrested By Police, Given Lecture, Paroled To Parents.

Brought before Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court yesterday, two 15-year-old Mansfield youths who had been arrested by police on a delinquency charge, were given a lecture and paroled to their parents.

The boys admitted releasing the brake on a railroad car at the Lomax Coal yard, Eclipse street, permitting the car to crash through a gate at the coal yards.

Friendliness May Be Cause Of Attitude

By VIRGINIA LEE

OLD BOY is a widower with one daughter who soon is to be married. She has been keeping house for him. He wants a home of his own instead of living with his daughter, and has found a very attractive woman his own age who seems "willin'."

She has just one fault — she smiles at and talks to every man she sees in stores and places, whether she knows them or not.

"I certainly do not like to see her smiling at strangers on the street or in cars," he writes. "Other women do not do it, even when they know me. What is your opinion on this question?"

Has this woman ever been married? I have known single women who had a sort of phobia about men, always imagining certain men were in love with them and appropriating said men, and causing them and their families untold embarrassment. If she is the type of woman, marriage may give her the necessary stability to overcome it and content herself with a man who really cares about her.

May Be Friendly.

On the other hand, it may be that she has a friendly, free and easy nature that makes her feel clubby to all the world, and that is the reason of her smiles and chatter to strangers. Doesn't she include women in her chattiness, or is it just men? Maybe you notice her smiling at the men because you are a little bit jealous, eh?

* * *

WHAT TO DO: Sorry I did not answer before. Maybe I did not get your letter or you did not see the answer. You and the boy friend are very young, and being in love, you are naturally emotional. Not having much money, the prospect of marrying within a few months bothers you both, no doubt. You don't HAVE to be married so soon, you know, so try not to worry about it. Just try to have a good time when you are together and have faith that you can work out the future together. I think this worried feeling is what makes your boy friend act so moody, don't you? Of course his dad's objection to you doesn't help.

Today's Recipes.

BACON GRIDDLE CAKES — Two and one-half cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two eggs, two cups milk, two tablespoons vegetable fat, three or four slices bacon. Sift flour, measure, and add baking powder and salt; sift again. Beat eggs in mixing bowl. Add milk and beat into eggs; stir in fat. Sift dry ingredients into liquids and stir quickly until dry ingredients are well moistened. (Batter will have lumps, but they will cook out.) Panfry bacon until crisp; drain from fat and break into small pieces. Add to batter and cook on sizzling hot griddle. This amount makes 15 to 16 cakes.

Get Into Habit Of Taking Care of Hair

By JULIET SHELBY
(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

JUST AS predicted earlier this season, the new upsweep hair arrangements have taken the smart spots by storm. It's hair high almost to a woman.

If you have overcome that first timidity over something so radically new as these popular coiffures, you are probably realizing the charm and femininity of the new styles. When you have an attractive neckline and a lovely throat, there is nothing which makes you quite so appealing as to have your hair swept cleanly off the neckline and high on your head.

It isn't terribly difficult to care for the new graceful upsweep that your hair is taking, but it is important to remember that the health of your hair, encouraged by daily brushing, will play a definite part in retaining the loveliness of your hairdress. The very fact that hairdressers were first in calling these styles "brushed-up coiffures" indicates the importance attributed to brushing.

So get yourself a good hair brush, and learn to use it correctly because this is one of the requisites if you are planning to brush up your coiffure. There are some narrow, lightweight brushes on the market that strand the hair as they brush, and don't destroy your wave or curls. Naturally you have to do your brushing the right way to get the most out of your efforts.

Routine Does Trick.

This routine will do the trick. First throw your head forward. The blood rushing to your head is extremely healthful and will aid your treatment. Place your brush on its side at the back of the head, then, turning the brush under until you feel it gripping the hair, begin brushing up and out to the very tip ends of the hair, using the vibrating movement. This is a sort of jerky, lightning streak motion that will grip the hair and give a tug to the hair roots. It exercises lazy scalp muscles and stimulates the circulation, meanwhile massaging the scalp thoroughly. Work all around the hair line to sweep away unbecoming scalp debris and cosmetic particles which have lodged in the hair. Then part your hair on top of your head in strands and brush each one individually with a vibrating motion. The friction caused by the brushing treatment will bring out the natural oils, and the bristles of the brush will distribute them over the hair strands, polishing them until they gleam with new life and luster. Remember to keep wiping your brush on a towel during the brushing.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I SMILED at Mary's youthful impatience as I finished testing the last door chain.

"The verdict is 'satisfactory'," I told her, "and we will be able to leave at once." Then I turned to the man.

"Thank you very much," I said cordially. "I shall tell Mr. Milner how well you have done your work."

"Thank you, Madame," he returned, and left upon the word. Mary caught up her purse.

"'Let us gae, lassie, gae, to the braes of Balquither'," she sang softly, and I smiled at hearing the old song which is one of my favorite ballads.

"There is no reason why we should tarry longer," I told her, and we went away forthwith.

"I wonder if 'our mutual friend' will be waiting for us," Mary murmured as we came out into the street, "or will somebody else be pinch hitting for him."

Still On the Job.

"I should decide for the latter alternative," I said, as a taxi driver, beckoned by the doorman, slid to the curb beside us. But even as I spoke, my eyes went to the doorway where the detective trailing us had stood when we entered the hotel, and I saw that he was just emerging from it, hailing a taxi with the intention of following us.

"But I made the wrong decision," I told Mary, smiling.

"I see you did," she said. "I thought he'd change off with a stand-in, so he could eat and sleep, but he seems to be Old Dog Tray himself."

Then her lips set in a thin line and her eyes were flecks of flame.

"This is getting to be a little bit of too much," she said in low tones filled with venom. "I think I'll confront that baby tonight, tell him we know what he's doing and threaten to turn him over to the nearest cop if we see him within a half mile of us again."

"Mary, Mary!" I expostulated. "Don't you know that will spoil any chance we have of learning who is behind this man?"

Mary Tired of It.

"Don't I know it?" Mary whispered fiercely. 'It will also up them off we're wise, and so spoil our little scheme to give him the slip whenever we want to. I didn't really mean what I said, of course, but I'm getting awfully fed up with him. Aren't you?"

I did not dare to tell her the frayed state of my own nerves, for she was dangerously wrought up as it was. She needed calm matter of fact dissent, not sympathetic assent to her query.

"I think I'm getting used to him," I said placidly. "And I also think it would be a good idea to forget he exists, for tonight at least."

Trade Compliments.

She gave me a quick side glance. "Okay," she said. "And may I add that you're the best sport in seventeen counties?"

"Hardly that, Mary," I said flushing with pleasure, "but I thank you for the tribute and can return it with interest."

I had struck the right note. Her sense of humor triumphed over her dolor, and she laughed outright.

"All right, Alphonse! Gaston salutes you. But here we are at the theater. Here's to a happy evening!"

She tipped up an imaginary glass and pretended to quaff it, and so infectious was her humor that I found myself coming out of my own doldrums as I went into the theater, and, if it was not a happy evening for me, it was an enjoyable one.

Enjoy Evening.

That Mary also had enjoyed the evening I knew when, after an after-theater snack, we took a taxi back to the hotel, and she leaned back against the cushions exclaiming:

"Oh! boy! that was one good time! I'm tired as seven pups, but I sure needed this frolic. I don't care now if that detective puts us to bed every night and gets us up in the morning."

"He'll have a monotonous task if he does," I told her, smiling, yet with a serious note in my voice. "We're not likely to have another of these outings for a long time, you know."

"Who knows better than I?" Mary demanded with mock dolor that held a thrill of heady anticipative excitement. "Hard work commences tomorrow, and am I going to put my teeth into it!"

Dance Floor Popularity Can Be Cultivated.

Which Couple Are You?

Graceful, smiling, self-assured—Polly and Don are the hit of the evening. While poor Madge and Dick clutch each other desperately, feet tangled, hips askew.

How pathetic to be in such a fix when you can polish your dancing at home. With clever footprint diagrams and clear directions you'll learn the basic steps; then it's a cinch to add the twirls and hesitations.

To wring that sweet praise, "Marvelous!" from your partner when you waltz, take an extra-long, smooth step on the first beat of each measure.

For the tango, practice a quick catlike tread. Bend your knee, lift your foot slightly before stepping exactly on the accented beat of the music.

If it's a shag, dance high on the balls of your feet and a little apart from your partner. Swing it!

Care of Range.

In caring for your kitchen range, be sure that you don't set down heavy utensils with a rough hand or it will chip the enamel. Guard the enamel zealously, clean it only when it is cold, and then with mild soap and water, for porcelain enamel is glass you know.

Take a small wire, not a toothpick that will sliver, when you clean clogged burners in gas ranges, and use a soft brush, not a harsh fork, when you clean the open units of electric ranges. Keep the oven immaculately clean, so that spattered foods won't burn into its surface.

And last, form the habit of turning the heat low after a dish has started to boil. Once you have formed this habit it will eliminate such things as "boil-overs."

In removing basting threads cut them every few inches so that you do not have to pull a very long thread out at one time. You are very apt to leave holes in the goods if you pull out long threads.

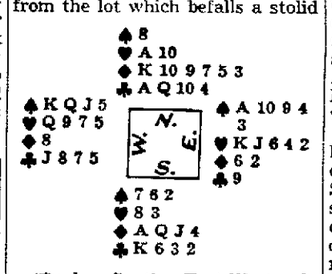
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A TIME TO SHADE

WHEN YOU have a couple of suits which can be bid, it pays in the long run to shade your high card requirements for an opening bid, particularly if you are not vulnerable. Finding a fit with your partner may change the result to something completely different from the lot which befalls a stolid bidder unalterably committed to his high card minimums.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable).

In the duplicate where this deal arose the results depended upon whether South considered he had strength enough to make on opening bid or not.

Where 1-Diamond was the opening by South, North took the contract to 5-Diamonds and East, even though holding two good suits, was afraid to call either one at the five range while vulnerable. As a result, the contract was allowed to stand at 5-Diamonds, which was made.

Those players who decided their holdings were too weak for an opening bid and passed in the South position received poor scores. In those instances, North opened with 1-Diamond, East overcalled with 1-Spade. South raised the diamonds, West the spades and North went to 5-Diamonds. However, East-West sacrificed at 5-Spades and were set only one trick.

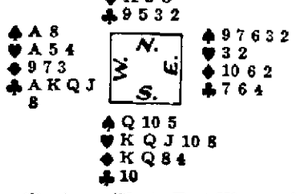
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West, East-West vulnerable.)

How should South play to make his contract of 4-Hearts?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, April 27.

A VERY lively and interesting day in private and business associations is read from the important planetary configurations. The element of friendship seems to enter largely into all such activities. Progress seems assured, with finances increasing through speculative enterprises as well as practical propositions or new undertakings, in which influential persons may take an interest.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of much progress and prosperity, with business, new undertakings, speculation, litigation and employment all under excellent prospects. Powerful friendships and social contacts also may play an important part, and there seems to be decided intermingling of functions of a business and social nature. Aim high with such harmonious co-operation assured.

A child born on this day may be ambitious, versatile and capable in many directions, with its fine mentality and attractive personality advancing its position and assuring its popularity and success. Legal ability is accented.

My Neighbor Says:

In order to make the most of a vegetable garden, it is desirable to draw a plan now, indicating the rows to be devoted to each kind of vegetable and remembering that certain kinds, which mature quickly, can be followed by other crops, thus extending the season. Early peas can be followed by celery, early beets by New Zealand spinach and early spinach by late beets.

THEATER

Quickies . . . Clark Gable has now made 30 pictures but "Test Pilot" is the first in which he portrays a father on the screen. . . . If you write a fan letter to Garbo, you waste your time and your stamps. The star never receives anything at M. G. M. except registered mail. The Culver City post office has orders to direct all other letters, unopened, back to their senders. If no return address is given, they go to the dead letter office. . . . The Henie lass grows more amazing by the minute. In addition to the skating, skiing and tennis titles, it seems, that, at the age of 14 she won a Stockholm auto racing championship. Now Sonja wants to garner honors in a new sport, swimming. Her next picture will be "My Lucky Star."

Romantic Situation.

An unbeatable foursome — Myrna Loy, Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore — starring in the curently running "Test Pilot" at the Ohio, bring to the screen another picture of air thrills coupled with a romantic situation. Tracy plays the familiar role of the hard-boiled, tenderhearted mechanic of the landing field who serves as a good samaritan to all in the cast. Gable portrays the test pilot and Miss Loy lends her usual brilliant, dramatic and somewhat unemotional romantic interest to this fast moving saga of the life of the man who soars above the clouds lives.

Inimitable Pair.

Co-starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are now so famous to the movie-goers of the nation that it is merely necessary to say that they are gaily, romantically, and amusingly singing their way through "Girl of the Golden West" at the Madison theater today and tomorrow. A story of the old west the plot is the familiar one of the beautiful young girl who is attacked by bandits on her way to Monterey, but successfully outwits the desperadoes. Nelson Eddy, the bandit leader, falls in love with Miss MacDonald and it takes a number of very moving scenes with the two stars singing in their remarkable manner to untangle the snarl in which they find themselves.

Against The World.

Alice Moore plays the trying role of a young woman whose husband dies just before the birth of her child and whose father disowns her. A series of breath-taking and incredible events force Miss Moore into a number of circumstances which place her in the position in the current picture at the Majestic, "Woman Against the World," of a fugitive from justice, a murderess and a kidnaper. However with the assistance of Ralph Forbes, brilliant young attorney, affair is straightened out even though the audience has its credulity tested sternly. This picture and "Old Hutch," running simultaneously, open today for a three-day run.

Back in Circulation.

"Back In Circulation" is the title of the picture which is being shown along with "Topper" at the Ritz starting today. The double-header is set for a three-day showing. Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell and Margaret Lindsay are the bright bits that make the movie pleasant. As the title indicates, the picture tells the story of intrigue and yellow journalism, of circulation building stunts, and sweet-faced girl reporters, of wrecks and murder, and a dash of very tender passion between Pat O'Brien and Joan Blondell in the title roles.

DI MAGGIO SIGNS ONLY AFTER GOULD COMES TO AID OF YANKS

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK—(NS)—Joe Gould, the prize fight manager, and not Joe DiMaggio, the baseball outfielder, finally accepted terms for DiMaggio to play ball for the New York Yankees this season at $25,000. I am quite reliably informed today. Di Maggio, in fact, didn't want the $25,000, and still doesn't.

Joe Gould

He feels that he's entitled to the $40,000 he was asking and might have kept on feeling that way forever, only Gould, long a trusted friend, got him on the trans-continental phone early last week and persuaded him that he'd better come in because "public opinion and the press" seemed set against him. A second call to one of DiMaggio's brothers clinched the decision, I understand.

Anyhow, the home run champion's anounced capitulation followed from San Francisco within less than two days.

In other words, the ink is hardly dry upon the contract signed in the stuffy, old colonel's downtown office yesterday, but the last word hasn't been bandied yet. If Di Maggio has another big season this time, he won't be back barking for that $40,000 again next winter. He'll probably make it $50,000, and the indignant colonel will have himself an awful set of symptoms.

Even yesterday, when he had the young man's neck submissively bowed under the yoke of authority, the colonel preserved a marked air of hauteur throughout, as befitted one who had been tried beyond endurance, as indeed he has.

May Wind Up With Another Babe Ruth.

WHY, if he doesn't eye this situation very narrowly, the next thing you know he'll wind up with another Babe Ruth, the man-who-saved-baseball, and the game has no patience with that idea now. It doesn't have to be saved any more. It's doing all right, with a covey of gents named John J. Jones.

All baseball is aroused by this dastardly program, since if it turns out that they have to pay the fellow what he's worth at the gate and on the field, then he'll take everybody else's wages up there along with him, just as Ruth did. Dean, for instance, would have to get $40,000 on a 30-game season. Medwick would hold out for at least $30,000 from the Cards. Mize, Ott and Bartell would want—and probably get—better than $20,000, and so would Herman and Demaree, with Hartnett doing even better.

Gehringer, Greenberg and York would be big-bracket men, at an asking price of $35,000, in Detroit, and P. Waner and Vaughn would be thinking of at least $25,000 in Pittsburgh. Feller would want, and expect, $30,000; Allen $25,000, and so on.

Why, the whole thing would be out of focus very shortly. The first thing you knew, in fact, some of those business managers might even have to go to work for what they were worth.

MILWAUKEE BOWLERS GAIN SECOND PLACES

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Tournament play in the Women's National Bowling congress went into its fifth day today with Milwaukee keglers in the standings. The leaders in each division remained unchanged although the M. Klabunde-F. Kosta combination of Milwaukee went into second place in the doubles with a 1,124 score. Mrs. E. Ryan of Milwaukee was second in the all-events with a 1,762.

Umps, Take Care—It's Battling Burleigh

The growling Mr. Grimes

This seems to sustain the widespread rumor that Burleigh Grimes doesn't fool. The manager of the Brooklyn boys comes out of the dugout with something on his mind. Or, maybe he's just getting something off his chest. Anyhow, it seems to be a mouthful!

Andy Pilney Climbs Back Into Spotlight; This Time as a Baseball Slugger, Though

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—In the fall of 1935, an inspired Notre Dame football team blasted the national championship hopes of Ohio State by putting on a dramatic last half rally to snatch what appeared an impossible victory.

The leader of that brilliant rally was Andy Pilney, a great halfback who ran, passed and kicked Ohio State dizzy in the mad last period.

Pilney has deserted the gridiron for the diamond and yesterday he climbed back into the spotlight by hammering out a ninth inning double to drive in the run which gave his Indianapolis team a 5 to 4 victory over Milwaukee in the American association's headline game.

Pilney, now playing his third year of professional baseball as the Indians' regular left fielder, also secured one other hit, stole a base and handled five chances in the field without an error.

Kansas City continued to set a red-hot pace in the association when it downed Louisville 10 to 2. Norman Branch, in the box for the Blues, gave up only eight hits and blanked Louisville after the first inning. The win was Kansas City's seventh in nine games.

Ray Phelps, portly right-handed ace of St. Paul, limited the Columbus Red Birds to six hits as he gained a 1 to 0 victory in 10 innings at the expense of Rookie Herschel Lyons. The shutout marked the fourth time in their last five games the Red Birds have failed to score.

Minneapolis raked three Toledo hurlers for 15 hits and took an 8 to 1 victory from the Mudhens. The triumph enabled the Millers to climb into a tie for third place in the race.

Pitcher Nobody Wanted Wins Again to Hoist Cincinnati

Derringer Registers Second Straight Victory By Blanking Cardinals With Three Hits.

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—The pitcher nobody wanted, Paul Derringer, today held a place among the elite of the National league's hurlers with two straight victories.

During the winter the Cincinnati Reds made frantic efforts to unload Derringer, but were unable to swing a deal for him. Confronted by such a situation Manager Bill McKechnie decided to make the best of it and use the veteran right-hander.

In his first start Derringer set the Chicago Cubs down with four hits and yesterday he came back to give Cincinnati a 5 to 0 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals. The triumph enabled the Reds to climb into sixth place in the standing.

Derringer pitched one of the finest games of his career yesterday. The husky right-hander made good use of a sharp breaking curve and a fine fast ball to limit the Cardinals to three hits. Two of the safeties were credited to Rookie Enos Slaughter and the other to Johny Mize.

Only once was Derringer in danger of being scored upon. That was in the fifth inning when Mize led off with a triple. The Redleg hurler then bore down to make Don Padgett foul out, Terry Moore strike out and Mickey Owen fly out.

Outside the fifth, the Cardinals got only one base runner to second.

While Derringer held the Cardinals at his mercy, Cincinnati pounded Bob Weiland for four runs in the first two innings and then added a fifth counter in the eighth at the expense of Guy Bush.

The clubs were to meet here again today with Al Hollingsworth and Curt Davis as the opposing pitchers.

EAST SIDE TEAM GAINS REVENGE FOR NO-HITTER.

The East Side night club team defeated the Musille outfit, 3 to 1, at Liberty park Monday. The East Siders pushed across their three tallies in the third frame and were never headed. The losers collected their run in the last of the ninth. In winning, the East Siders obtained revenge for the hitless game Dale McKinley pitched against them last week. McKinley was on the mound yesterday.

Rocking Chair Gets 'Gorilla'

Clingman Takes Match In Straight Falls.

The old "rocking chair" hold got Mr. Gorilla Grubmyer twice in the main go of Tim Nolan's Quality club grapple show at the Armory last night, with Otis Clingman doing the rocking.

Clingman, of Amarillo, Tex., took the main event in straight falls from Grubmyer who hails from up Chicago way.

Both boys roughed it up plenty in their 11 minutes of brawling, and Referee Clarence Miller had a busy time of it. Biting, slugging and choking were just a few of the weapons they employed.

Clingman took the first fall in four minutes, and the second in seven.

The semi-final brought out plenty of action, with the rough and tumble "Indian Ike" Cazzell and the leaping cowboy, Tex Hager, both of Texas, mixing it up. Hager was the winner.

The first fall went to Hager in five minutes with a "drop kick." "Indian Ike" evened it up with a knee break in three minutes. It took just one minute to finish the match. Cazzell was an easy victim when he lost his balance while attempting to apply another knee break.

The prelim brought together Frances Steele of Plymouth and the "Mad Prince" Ilika of Bagdad, Arabia. Steele showed up better than he ever did, but lost in 12 minutes in a slugging match. The pin was accomplished with a double leg-lock.—By Paul White.

J.A.C. Titles to Be Decided In Y.M.C.A. Ring Tonight

Last Round of A. A. U. Mitt Tourney to Bring Together Classy Performers.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THIRTY top notch simon-pure sluggers, survivors of the elimination bouts in the Junior Association of Commerce A. A. U. boxing tournament, were taking things easy today as they awaited for the championship finals at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 p. m.

Only five Mansfielders were listed among the athletes who represented boxing talent from seven surrounding cities.

Several of the out-of-town youngsters are favorites to cop titles tonight.

Principal Threats.

The principal threats are Ernie McKinley, Ashland featherweight, Frank Dolce, a flyweight, and Phil Ganni, middleweight. The latter two fighters hail from Crestline.

Dolce established himself as a real threat last Thursday when he disposed of two rivals in impressive fashion. He faces Tom Clemens, Friendly House boy, in the finals.

Ernie McKinley, outstanding featherweight of this section, makes his debut on the card against Salvador Duran of Fremont. McKinley, who has waded through all the amateur tourneys in this district this year, is expected to topple Duran, and then tackle Kid Carmel of the settlement in the finals.

Ganni, hard-punching middleweight, in his only appearance on the card last Wednesday, marked himself as a serious contender for the 160-lb. division title. He lines up with Ernest Viock of Norwalk in a semi-final affair.

Bub Sturzinger, classy light heavyweight of Sandusky, is expected to run into some tough opposition when he meets the winner of the Jack Swartz-Merle Kleinknecht bout in the finals. Both Swartz, a Mansfield product, and Kleinknecht of Crestline, have established themselves as dangerous men.

The members of the Mansfield aggregation who are expected to figure in championship bouts are "Curley" Miller, Beauford Glover, and Swartz.

Miller and Glover will battle it out for the lightweight crown, with Swartz having a good chance of copping the light heavyweight title.

Carbetta Withdraws.

Another Mansfield clouter, Paul Carbetta, the favorite in the flyweight division, has withdrawn from the fight on the advice of his physician. The youngster, who recently won the 112-lb. titles at Galion and Marion, has an infected upper lip.

With Carbetta out of the tournament, a Friendly House stablemate, Tom Clemens, automatically advances to the finals.

Several consolation affairs will be sandwiched into the program tonight, tournament officials announced.

Rollie Has Date With 'Slap', Faces Indefinite Suspension

Hemsley Admits Taking 'A Few Drinks,' But Denies He Was Drunk Sunday Night.

"Rollicking Rollie," the catcher whose deportment routed whatever was left of Manager Oscar Vitt's tranquility, has a date with Vice President C. C. Slapnicka of the Cleveland Indians.

The recalcitrant one faces a blanket charge of multiple infractions of training rules. More specifically, his superiors allege Hemsley (a) indulged inordinately in distillated beverages, and (b) bartered prescribed hours of slumber for the bright lights.

Draws $250 Fine.

Vitt fined Hemsley $250 Sunday night and ordered him to return to Cleveland from Detroit, where the backstop had caught a stellar game that afternoon with young Bob Feller on the mound.

"I'm standing in a hotel lobby and Rollie walks by me," explained Vitt in Chicago yesterday. "It was obvious he hadn't been observing training regulations."

A soft-spoken, almost shy Hemsley arrived here to be put officially "on the carpet."

"I had a few drinks of liquor Sunday night," he said, "but I wasn't drunk. You could have knocked me over with a feather when I was told the bad news.

"I'm in good shape and ready to work any time. I certainly hope I can rejoin the team soon."

Slapnicka has threatened to make the suspension indefinite. Club President Alva Bradley, who termed Hemsley "Peck's bad boy," said he would back Slapnicka in the dispute.

"I hated to do it," Vitt commented. "I like Rollie personally and he's one of the finest fellows in the world—but what would happen if I continually overlooked his outbreaks?"

Lost $5,000 In 1937.

"Rollicking Rollie," who lost $5,000 in payless suspensions and fines last year with the St. Louis Browns, spoke in a similar vein.

"I've got no animosity toward Vitt," he said. "He's a great guy."

League to Plan For Golf Season

The News-Journal Class B golf league will discuss organization plans at a meeting at the Central Fruit & Grocery company offices, West Sixth street, at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, it was announced today by Homer King, league president.

All captains of last year's teams and sponsors who wish to enter clubs in the circuit this year are asked to attend the meeting.

WHITEHILL TO FACE CAIN, CHISOX TODAY

CHICAGO —(NS)— Idle yesterday because of threatened rain and cold weather, the Cleveland Indians engage the White Sox today in the delayed start of their first series of the year here.

Earl Whitehill, scheduled to pitch yesterday, was to go to the mound for Cleveland, while Merritt (Sugar) Cain, right-hander, was the likely Sox choice.

Bushnell Tops Track Field

Thin-clads of Bushnell scored 32½ points to win the Grade School track meet at Stadium field Monday. West Fifth came in second with 18 points and Bushnell followed with 12½. Western failed to tally a point.

Bushnell and West Fifth each annexed three firsts, but Bushnell swept all three places in the pole vault to take its commanding lead. Pace of West Fifth was the only youngster to win two events. He ran the 50-yard dash in eight seconds and came right back to cop the shot put with a 27 feet, one inch heave.

Why didn't somebody TELL me?

WITHIN the next twelve months, some 300,000 motorists are going to buy cars at or about the price of a LaSalle—and still not get a LaSalle.

Many of these, we are convinced, will do this because they do not appreciate how little a LaSalle costs. They assume that LaSalle's price is high—because its quality and reputation are so high.

But this isn't true! As a matter of fact, you can pay more for certain models of eleven other cars than it costs to get a new LaSalle V-8.

If you expect to pay more than $1,000 for your next motor car—go on up and get a LaSalle. You ought to do this because there is really no substitute for Cadillac quality, Cadillac safety and Cadillac prestige.

Why not come in today for a demonstration?

TUESDAY, APRIL 26, 1938.

Now that Dizzy Dean is among the Chicago Cubs, the club will probably have need for its three managers.

Times have changed—and before long everybody may be asked to co-operate in observing National Spendthrift week.

Some folks seem to think they have no greater obligation to their community than to have their name appear in the city directory.

No Hostile Indians This Time.

MANSFIELD and Richland county's participation in the widespread celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of the Northwest territory comes next Monday.

Elaborate preparations are in the making for reception of the caravan of "pioneers" which will come to Mansfield on this occasion, for re-enactment of some of the scenes that marked the period of a century and a half ago when the pioneering was real and when bands of hostile Indians beset every path through the section that now constitutes the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

To have the real value that is intended, an event such as this should not only create interest and provide entertainment but should also serve to concentrate public attention on the remarkable progress that has been made in this part of the United States in a comparatively short time.

Much of historical interest centers around adoption of the Ordinance of 1787, "for the government of the territory of the United States northwest of the Ohio river" and there could be no more appropriate time for school and home study of these events than during the week preceding next Monday's celebration.

A criticism of methods of teaching history that appears to be justified is that occurrences are made to seem too remote to arouse interest. Even in the modern surroundings of a progressive city, the coming of a band of "pioneers," with a return of early-day stockades, an afternoon parade and an evening pageant—all vividly remindful of an important era in the nation's history—should prove educational as well as entertaining.

Railroads Boost Ohio Business.

OHIO is one of the six states which benefited most from the expenditures of the railroads in 1937 for materials, supplies, fuel, new equipment and payrolls, it is revealed in a special study just completed by the Bureau of Railway Economics of the Association of American Railroads.

Railway purchases in Ohio last year totaled $67,579,267, the report shows. Of this sum, $61,373,439 was spent for materials, supplies and fuel, while $6,205,828 went for new equipment (not including that built in company shops). These purchases were made in 637 towns and cities located in 87 of the 88 counties of the state.

The review discloses that, for the nation as a whole, the railroads last year paid $1,133,361,468 for the more than 70,000 different items which they use. Materials, supplies and fuel cost $966,383,000, and expenditures for all new equipment (except that constructed in railway shops) totaled $166,978,468. More than 12,000 towns and cities located in 2,638 of the 3,072 counties of the United States derived direct benefits from this large volume of railroad buying.

In 1937, the country's rail carriers also distributed $1,983,990,485 in wages to their employes, the report says.

Chemical Outlook Bright.

AMONG statements made by speakers before the American Chemical society at Dallas, Tex., were these:

The five-billion-dollar chemical industry is the third largest in America.

It spent $100,000,000 last year on expansion, but has cut its spending rate sharply this year because of uncertainties about taxes and wages.

If these uncertainties were removed, it would go ahead right now with another $100,000,000 expansion.

The chemical industry has topped all other industries in economic progress, using as a basis of comparison the boom years of 1925 to 1929 and the depression years of 1933 to 1937.

Industrial disputes in the chemical industry are "almost unheard of."

New profits in chemistry rose faster than in any other of 100 foremost American industries.

Most of the extra rise occurred in those companies which spent most money for scientific research.

If two and two really make four, the chemical industry has few really troublesome uncertainties in its future. Spending money for expansion and scientific research looks like betting on a sure thing.

Boys' Traffic Court.

RACINE, Wis., has a bicycle court which is open every Saturday morning. The presiding "judge" is a traffic officer from the police force. Court officers and prosecutors are members of the safety patrol, a group of 25 boys between the ages of 13 and 16 recruited from the junior traffic police who guard the crossings near schools. The offenders brought in for trial are youthful bike-riders who have violated a traffic rule during the week.

One of the penalties imposed on violators has been to write out the bicycle regulations and take examinations in them. Second offenders are deprived of the use of their bicycles. There have been no third offenders, but if there were they would be taken into juvenile court.

"This is serious business," says the traffic sergeant who is a judge on Saturdays. "Our court is patterned after a regular court. We have a twofold purpose: to convince children that rules must be obeyed and teach them habits of safety."

Some of the court sessions are broadcast. The number of accidents has declined since this co-operative, educational experiment was begun. Most children have good sense and judgment—and use them if properly encouraged to do so.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

HENRY FORD confers with President Roosevelt. The automobile magnate is the biggest individualist in the industrial world, as Franklin D. Roosevelt is in the political world. Ford refuses to budge from his ideas, defies governmental regulation — and "gets away with it." The president is strongly for governmental regulation, but not half so strongly as his opponents make believe. It has been governmental regulation, or no survival even of the fittest.

There is one Henry Ford idea that even some "left wingers" indorse—commodity prices will find a lower level. The road to prosperity is not through constant stimulation of prices. In fact, the drop in commodity prices will be all the more abrupt in the end because of the jacking up.

COMMODITY "REVOLUTION"

When the tale of this era finally is told it will be one of economic revolution, forcing political and social change.

This is brought out in a work by Dr. Melvin T. Copeland, professor of marketing in the Harvard university business school.

This report, titled "A Raw Commodity Revolution" is summarized by the Wall Street Journal in these words:

"Technological developments, plus the opening up of new sources of production under the stimulus of war and post-war influences have increased production of many of the primary staples, Professor Copeland points out, and in a number of instances shifts in demand have reduced market needs for these products. Thus, the old relationship of supply and demand for these raw materials, upon which thousands of millions of people depend for a livelihood, has been upset, markets have been flooded and prices have slumped.

"The effects of these forces are not yet complete, the report indicates, and the revolutionary price changes are not yet ended. When they finally stop, prices for many raw commodities will be permanently lower with relation to other prices than they were prior to 1918 or 1920, Professor Copeland believes.

"Practically all attempts to combat the disturbing commodity price trend have failed, the survey discloses. 'Import tariffs, preferential trade agreements, valorization schemes, cartels, governmental controls of production or marketing, and monetary measures have been tried without success. At best these devices have held the forces of revolution at bay temporarily and thus have given men more time in which to readjust their disturbed affairs.'"

"INFLATION NO WAY."

"Inflation, says Dr. Copeland, does not afford a way out. The current trouble, he believes, is caused not by a low general level of prices, which might be raised by monetary means, but by a change in the relation of raw commodity prices to the prices of semi-finished and finished goods. Inflation, for the most part, tends to affect all prices alike, and hence is not a remedy for a disturbance in the relationship of one group of prices to another within the price structure...

"The raw commodity situation helped to turn the business slump which began in 1929 into a major economic disaster, and was responsible in part for its prolongation and intensification," Dr. Copeland states. Although conditions brought about by the World war influenced some of the changes, many others would have occurred, anyway, if somewhat more slowly and in a more orderly fashion, he adds.

"Despite the hardships visited upon those who suffer losses and those who have difficulties in meeting the new conditions, this raw commodity revolution has its bright side," the professor concludes. "By technological improvements, physical burdens have been lifted from the backs of many workers, and new jobs by the thousands have been created. Moreover, the revolution, by providing a greater abundance of basic raw materials, will yield a higher standard of living for the world at large."

Timely Editorial

Reckless Driver Removed.

Imposition of a probation sentence for five years, during which time the accused is forbidden to drive an automobile in lieu of a workhouse sentence, a fine and suspension of driving rights for a short period was the commendable method used by Municipal Judge Clifford Thursday to remove from the streets a driver who is a menace to the public. This man had a record of one arrest for speeding at 90 miles an hour, another for going 60, being involved in a third instance in an accident in which there was a loss of life and of having previously disregarded a former suspension of driving rights.

An individual with this attitude ought never be permitted to endanger his own life and the lives and property of others by running at large at the wheel of a motor vehicle. A fine and brief imprisonment do this sort of person no good so far as correcting his reckless tendencies. The treatment given his case is exactly right. The only improvement would be revocation of driving rights for life, an action not possible under present laws.—Columbus Dispatch.

La Guardia Takes a Look-Around

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York has not failed to attract political Washington's attention by his latest southwestern "swing around the circle."

I had occasion a few days ago to refer to the Manhattan-ite as something of a 1940 presidential possibility.

This southwestern tour of his rather more than hints that Fiorello himself has ambitions beyond the limits of his home city—in fact, that he is trying to get folk acquainted with him throughout the whole country.

SEEMED A CAMPAIGN

He is not, to be sure, unaware, like many New Yorkers, that there are quite a few states across the Hudson river. True, he was born in Brooklyn or thereabouts (Dec. 11, 1882, but he grew up in Arizona.

His recent trip, however, was considerably more than a visit to the scenes of his boyhood days. Primarily, it was in response to an invitation to him to attend a local celebration in Oklahoma. He arranged to extend his travels into Texas. He also accepted a bid to make a speech, on his return journey, in St. Louis. He touched at numerous intermediate points likewise, voyaging largely by automobile, with plenty of opportunities for contracts.

Altogether, the affair has had quite a bit the aspect of a campaign expedition.

WHAT PARTY?

It is a little difficult to say upon what ticket the New Yorker logically might be nominated presidentially.

He has served in congress both as a Republican and a Socialist. He was elected mayor of New York as a Fusionist. He seems to be associated now with the American Labor party, having severed his relationship with orthodox Republicanism. He never declared himself as a Democrat, but has been very sympathetic toward Democratic New Dealer-ism.

From various interviews with him, when he was in the house of representatives, I know that he believes Americans are reshuffling themselves into two new parties—clean-cut liberals and clean-cut conservatives.

He consistently could accept a liberal presidential nomination, regardless of the name it might be designated.

Or he could accept a liberal third party nomination. It is traditional that American third parties (like the elder Senator La Follette's, in 1924) get nowhere. But of course La Guardia's notion would be to transform HIS third party, should he undertake to lead one, into one of the two MAJOR parties.

A DIFFERENCE?

It did not work in 1924.

Still, that was different. Times were good then. The average voter wanted them to stay PUT.

In 1940, if conditions are what they are at present, who can tell?

ASSESSING HIM

Let's assess La Guardia.

I talked with him many times when he was a congressman.

He is dynamic, plus. He has brains. He has a program. He does not fluctuate, like President Roosevelt. Conservatives may not agree with his philosophy, but he HAS one, to be counted on.

His congressional associates all said of him, "He is a dangerous radical, but a square shooter."

WAR-TIME AVIATOR

If size has anything to do with it, Fiorello is a pewee perpendicularly, but about as broad as he is long.

He was an aviator during the World war. "And I never went up without being scared half to death," he told me. "I'm no hero." He went up, nevertheless, and got some decorations for it. And he flies regularly in passenger planes.

It generally is agreed that he has given New York City a dingbusted good mayoralty administration. And has been business-like, too.

As a presidential candidate, to say the least, he is interesting.

The Government's Right to Tax.

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—When the president proposed taxing federal, state and municipal securities and the salaries of state and local job holders, he challenged the supreme court anew to reverse itself, but the court for years has been reversing itself piecemeal in this direction and gives some promise of moving faster.

John Marshall ruled that Maryland could not tax national banks, a ruling which set the precedent for the supreme court for many years—that one branch of government could not tax the agencies of another branch.

For years state-rights lawyers have argued that if the federal government could tax income from state securities and tax the pay of local officials it could destroy state and local government simply by imposing crushing taxes.

Nevertheless liberal members of the court have indicated for some time that they favored trimming the broad shelter of exemption, both from federal and state taxes. They never have gone quite so far as the President proposes. However, with a few exceptions, the court has followed the trend far enough to permit taxing of branches of the government which are not strictly governmental.

Exemptions Attacked.

IN SEVERAL recent cases the federal internal revenue bureau that attacked some of the exemptions claimed by state officials. The revenue bureau has prosecuted an income tax claim against salaries of officials of the Port of New York Authority with such vigor that 25 states have intervened in an appeal to the supreme court.

Just who would be hurt most by a decision permitting the federal government to tax the states and the states to tax the federal government is anybody's guess. In the Port of New York case the federal government contends that the port authority is building tunnels and bridges so fast that the ferry business is being destroyed. That is wiping out a source of revenue for the federal government and it is claiming a right to tax the port authority in lieu of it.

Yet out west the federal government owns forest land and public domain occupying half the area of some states. If the states attempted to tax those holdings the squawk of federal administrators would echo among the mountain peaks for generations. In early days the states urged that argument—and the federal howlers won out.

To Tax or Not to Tax.

OF COURSE it all grows out of the desperate hunt of the federal government for tax revenue. The states, meantime, are no less zealous, and the variety of decisions is amazing.

The supreme court has held that:

The salary of a New York City water commissioner is exempt from taxation because supplying water is an integral part of government. But salaries of officials of the municipally owned Boston elevated railway can be taxed.

The federal government was able to collect its tax on cigarets bought by the Masachusetts State Hospital but lost out in a suit for taxes on motorcycles sold to the Westfield, Mass., police department.

Various sources have estimated the federal government would pick up $150,000,000 a year from taxing income from federal and state bonds and the salaries of local officials.

But an equally important phase of the case is that such taxes would close up the fox-hole into which timid capital has been able to dive when storms blow up—federal and state bonds and securities.

Young America Says---

How Much Should a Modern Mother Know?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

A MOTHER has written to me. She did not enclose a photograph, or need to. Her polite and precise words give a clearer picture of her than any camera could. She was born at the turn of the century—vintage 1900—married immediately after the war. Her children, a boy and girl, are now 18 and 16, respectively.

And she's "frightfully worried"—says she. And plainly horrified.

She's worried and horrified because here, on one side, are her Lovely, Innocent Children. And here, on the other side, is "all this Frightful Depravity . . . these awful Exposures of Sin and Crime and Disease . . . Discussion, right in public print, of things that were never mentioned when she was a girl—things she can't explain even yet." And so, wails she—

"HOW CAN I POSSIBLY KEEP MY CHILDREN INNOCENT UNDER SUCH CIRCUMSTANCES?"

Whereupon—if she were not, obviously, such a Darling Dumbbell—I'd like to smack her, hard.

For no 1938 Mother should desire, or be given the right, to "keep her children innocent under such circumstances" . . . nor to remain innocent herself!

IT IS AS CRUEL FOR A 1938 MOTHER TO KEEP HER CHILD UNINFORMED OF CURRENT CONDITIONS AS IT WOULD HAVE BEEN FOR A 1738 MOTHER TO KEEP HER YOUNGSTER UNAWARE OF THE BEARS, VENEMOUS SNAKES, SAVAGES, AND OTHER WILDERNESS PERILS WHICH THEN BESET HIS PATH.

Never has Youth so needed reliable information as it needs it today. All around is incredible confusion. Wrecked standards . . . smashed conventions . . . discarded principles. The old-fashioned Home has gone. The School doesn't know—or dasn't tell—what it's all about. And Industry—which hitherto has carried Youth through its floundering bewilderment — now offers only closed doors. SO WHAT?

Where is Youth to learn what-life-is-all-about? How is Youth to determine what's right . . . what's wrong? And who's to tell Youth what pays . . . what doesn't?

The average Nice Mother shrinks in horror from these questions. Generally she says, "They're perfectly silly. Things aren't as bad as that. It's all newspaper scareheads . . . just trying to frighten people. Times haven't really changed.

But the average Nice Mother is wrong. Things ARE as bad as that. In fact, they're worse. There is UNEMPLOYMENT, for one thing—angry, agonized masses of idle men which no one could have imagined back in 1900. There is PROPAGANDA, constantly and insiduously at work, teaching any curious, eager youngster to suspect and despise everything which his fathers respected, loved and fought for. There is a POST-WAR MACHINE AGE, with its new freedom and sophistication, its chaotic relationships (or lack of them) between parents and children . . . children and society. And, most pressing of all, there are those intimate, personal problems which go hand in hand with vast social changes.

And behind it all, the wailing of the lost and lonely human heart seeking a Haven and a Hope in its fellow man and God.

These things are not "newspaper scareheads"—they are Twentieth Century Reality. They touch to a greater or less extent every Twentieth Century youngster. They strike terror to young hearts . . . they break young pride . . . they infect young dreams.

AND THE MOTHER WHO HASN'T INFORMED HERSELF ON THESE SUBJECTS, AND ISN'T PREPARED TO DISCUSS THEM WITH HER CHILD IN A FRANK AND FRIENDLY MANNER, IS A DISGRACE TO HER HIGH CALLING AND UNWORTHY OF TRUST AND RESPECT.

It isn't noble for mothers to be "nice and innocent" in 1938! It isn't refined for them to shrink from all these "horrid subjects."

IT'S CONTEMPTIBLE . . . AND THOSE WHO TAKE SUCH A STAND SHOULD BE SHOWN UP FOR THE SLACKERS THAT THEY ARE.

(Copyright, 1938.)

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Sometime next winter all the ink-stained wretches in this office will be transferred to new offices in Rockefeller Center . . . ordinarily men who write the news do not give a hang where their typewriters sit, or what offices they work in. But in my case this move is probably a very good thing—if it doesn't come too late—for as it is I am in grave danger of becoming a Peeping Tom.

You see, this office is at Madison and 46th street . . . and your correspondent's typewriter faces an open window that looks directly across 46th street into the windows of the Roosevelt hotel . . . and people in hotels so seldom pull down their shades . . . I don't know why it is, but they don't . . . the next time you are in a hotel, see if you pull the blinds.

IN THE months that I have subconsciously gazed into those well-lighted Roosevelt rooms I have seen some amazing things . . . for instance, one morning a young fellow came to the window and tossed a shoe brush on the head of a passer-by. That brought indignant protest to the management of the hotel. But the guest had barred his door . . . And he went a little haywire. The first thing he did was grab all the bedclothes and shove them out the window.

Then he tossed out a suitcase. After that he edged a chair through the window and let it clatter seven stories down to the sidewalk. Pillows, glasses, books, shoes, tubes of toothpaste followed . . . but by this time detectives had battered down the door and that was the last of that.

One afternoon, wrestling with an essay, I chanced to lift my eyes and beheld Eddie Cantor, sitting in the window. On another occasion I recognized Billy Rose. I yelled at him, and five minutes later a messenger boy handed me this telegram: "You should be ashamed writing in a window in your shirt sleeves. Pull down your shades."

ON ANOTHER occasion a girl lived there three days. She had a canary in a cage and a white cat. In the mornings she would hang the cage in the window, and while the bird sang songs in the sunlight the cat would look hungrily at the bird. I think the kitty lived in hope, day by day.

I became so interested in the canary that I spent more and more time at the typewriter. And then one morning it was gone, and with it the white cat, and the girl. In her place was a salesman who smoked big cigars. Then he was gone and someone else came. It is like that every day.

And so maybe it is a good thing that we are moving to a new office soon. In any event canaries won't keep getting in my hair.

Poison Oak for Lunch.

I'll never forget that boy who ate Poison Oak.

A summer morning, almost noon. A bunch of hot youngsters tramping the hills. Resting after the hike, in a green thicket. And the sun drifting through the trees onto this one bold boy, who was telling us Something Terrible. . . . He said he intended, right that minute, on that bright morning, to get up and eat some poison oak leaves.

He was sick and tired of having Poison Oak Trouble every time he went for a hike. And he had heard that if you ate the leaves you'd never be poisoned again. It cured you forever. The poison from the leaves got into your blood and sort of defended you against any more attacks. So he was going to eat some, right then. Who was game to eat it with him?

None of us was game. We had heard about that cure, too, and some of us pretended to believe it. But we didn't dare—even though we KNEW it would cure us for ever and ever. We argued with him, warned him, then gave up, because we didn't really want to persuade him not to eat it.

We were fascinated. Something Was About to Happen. This was better than a show. So we watched him get up and walk over to a bush and pick half a dozen leaves and, calm as anything, put them in his mouth and chew them — and that was all! Except that he looked scared afterwards and ready to cry.

Then we went home . . . and the Boy Who Ate Poison Oak was sicker than he'd ever been. And the rest of us were scolded for letting him to it. So, you see, it did not work. The boy had wasted his bravery.

Wasted it? No, I've never believed that. He believed something and tried it out. He thought that eating Poison Oak would rid him forever of "taking" Poison Oak. So he ate the leaves and was awfully sick, and he learned his belief was false. He tested his faith, found worthless, and he knew more, afterwards, than he did before.

A foolish kid? Well, I suppose so, but no more foolish than the rest of us who believed as he did but didn't dare put our faith to the test. So I envied him then, and I envy him still, as I envy all those mad, bold people who believe in all of life and spend their lives in proving what is false and what is true—and don't go whimpering around when they stub their toes.

Mr. C. Clauser, General Manager
Kobacker's
Mansfield, Ohio
Dear Mr. Clauser:

On the occasion of the second anniversary of the Kobacker store, I want to take this opportunity to extend to you—to the entire staff of associates and to the thousands of Kobacker customers—my appreciation for the splendid progress that the Kobacker store has made.

In two short years the Kobacker store has become firmly established as an integral part of the shopping district of Mansfield and has justified the confidence that we have had in this city for many years.

It is just such times as these that people are most keenly interested in the buying power of their money and it is just such times as these that the Kobacker store can be of greatest service to the people. Founded on a policy of selling for cash, Kobacker's have elminated unnecessary services and extravagant methods in order to sell good merchandise at lowest possible prices.

Today with our newly established New York buying headquarters in the very heart of the Eastern metropolis, the Kobacker store is indeed in a better position than ever before to bring to Mansfield merchandise of dependable qualities—very last minute styles and lower prices—advantages that shoud be reflected in your Anniversary celebration and further cement the friendship of Kobacker's and the buying public.

Very truly yours,

ALFRED J. KOBACKER.

Hilborn Tips 730 Club League Pins

Optimist Star Rolls Games of 235, 246 and 222 to Lead Scoring at Meder Alleys.

ART HILBORN is picking up a lot of pins in the home stretch of the 1937-38 bowling season.

Hilborn accounted for one of the very finest individual totals of the year last night when he accumulated 730 pins while bowling with the Optimists in the Club league at the Meder alleys.

The bespectacled star added games of 235, 246 and 222 to lead the Optimists to three victories over the Gas Meters.

Hilborn's total was the best last night, but not the only good-sized score. Grohol of the American Legion entry walloped out a 673, which included tilts of 205, 246 and 222, and Will of the same club shot a 608.

BOWLING in the Kentucky Derby tournament in Louisville over the week-end, Hilborn turned out the best three-game total of any member of the Moose team, Mansfield's only entrant in the tourney.

Hilborn put together games of 194, 234 and 248 for a 676 in the doubles. His partner, Brig Young, shot a 484, and they finished with an 1160.

The best Mansfield doubles total was rolled by Clarence Meder, 637, and Pete Linster, 546, who hung up an 1183. Mike Meder, with a 585, and Ev Schaus came through with an 1126.

In the singles, Linster rolled a 575; Hilborn, 570; Schaus, 565; M. Meder, 530; Young, 528, C. Meder, 500

Starting out with a poor 741, the Moose team collected only 2534 pins in the five-man event. The Lodgemen's big game was a 900 in the middle. Young, 528, and C. Meder, 524, led the scoring.

Central Now Ohio Favorite

Relays Champion Should Be Leading Contender in State Championships.

By OSCAR RUHL,
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

AS winning the Mansfield Relays is tantamount to victory in the state meet, Cleveland Central is now favored to take the Ohio scholastic track honors in the contests to be held in Columbus in May. The occasions that the Relays champions have not gone on to cop the state title are few since the Mansfield event became established. Not all of the schools in Ohio were participants in the Relays this year, but virtually all of the track powers were entered. Schools not entered at Stadium field are not expected to create many changes in the state standings. Eight of the 10 top teams in the 1937 state meet competed in Mansfield . . . The word is out that Jim Langhurst, Willard sophomore, has solved whatever backfield worry Coach Francis Schmidt has been nursing for next fall . . . If Galion affiliates with the Ohio State league, the team will consist mainly of home town boys, including Del Goldsmith, Tiffin outfielder . . . With Mansfield out of the picture, Fremont is now attempting to interest Billy Evans and the Boston Red Sox in backing its team in the Ohio circuit . . . Joe DiMaggio said he would not sign with the Yankees until he got what he wanted. But didn't we read somewhere that Joe has accepted the Yanks' offer. Joe, by the way, is going to help the Yankees, but what are the New York

Victim of Knockout Suffered From Hunger.

ONE can't help but feel sorry for Jim Dewberry, who was a victim of a knockout on the Y amateur card last week, after learning of his plight. His dad's out of work, according to a card received by this department from a sympathizer, and the kid fought the other night while hungry. That's why he was knocked cold with that left punch Frankie Dolce stuck into his stomach in the third round, we are told . . . It now looks like the Gas House gang won't have enough gas to lift itself anywhere this year. Not without ol' Diz.

Cincinnati Buys Big Jim Weaver

ST. LOUIS — (INS) — Big Jim Weaver, 6 feet, 6 inches tall, weighing 230 pounds, and one of the most travelled pitchers in the major leagues, today was preparing to don the uniform of the Cincinnati Reds.

The St. Louis Browns last night sold the big fellow out of the American league to the Reds for an unannounced price. Besides the Browns, Weaver has pitched for the Senators, Yankees, Cubs and Pirates.

Suspended

Suspended indefinitely for "disobedience," Charley Kurtsinger, well-known jockey and rider of War Admiral, may not be astride the great son of Man O'War when he races Seabiscuit in a $100,000 match race at Belmont park, May 30. Kurtsinger was suspended because he went to a Kentucky track instead of staying at Jamaica, L. I.

WHITE SOX ROOKIES SHUFFLE OFF TO BUFFALO

CHICAGO—(INS)—Two young members of the Chicago White Sox today were on their way to the Buffalo club of the International league Manager Jimmy Dykes last night released Infielder Bill Martin obtained from Baltimore, and Catcher Mike Tresh who came here from Portland of the Pacific Coast league, to the Bisons Martin was released outright, Tresh on option.

Pirates Again Show Drive As They Hang Up 7th Win

Rally in Eighth to Turn Back Chicagoans, 8 to 6; Cards Lose Again.

By ANTHONY J. PUGLIESE

NEW YORK — (INS) — Generally regarded by pre-season crystel gazers as no better than third or fourth place calibre, the Pittsburgh Pirates today are riding high over the pack in the National League campaign

Pie Traynor's ball club, exhibiting fire afield and getting a steady brand of pitching and a potent attack, finds itself out in front of the senior circuit by a game and a half. The Pirates once again showed their drive -and remained undefeated in seven games so far —by putting a four-run clincher on the Chicago Cubs in the eighth inning of yesterday's free-for-all to win 8 to 6

The Cubs, with Clay Bryant, Al Epperly and Bob Logan sharing the mound duties, were out in front, 6 to 4, by virtue of a four run rally featured by Tony Lazzeri's homer with a mate aboard Then came the Pittsburgh drive. Todd singled, and Logan walked Rizzo and Diehshot. Singles by Vaughan and Suhr scored three runs and put the game away Mace Brown and Russ Bauers gave the Cubs 11 hits.

In Cincinnati, the St. Louis Cardinals suffered their third shutout in as many days Saturday Larry French held them to four hits and won, 4 to 0, for the Cubs, and Sunday, Dizzy Dean whitewashed the Red Birds, 5 to 0, with four safeties.

Yesterday, the Cardinals were given another horse collar, this time with three hits at the hands of Paul Derringer, Cincinnati ace. Thus, the Cards dropped into undisputed possession of the National League cellar after getting only 11 hits and no runs in three games

The Reds, by touching Weiland, Henshaw, McGee and Bush for 11 hits, moved up into sixth place over the Phillies whose scheduled game with the New York Giants was washed out as was the encounter between the Dodgers and Bees in Boston.

In the American League, Fritz Ostermueller's four hit pitching shut out the Washington Senators, as the Red Sox pounded out a 7 to 0 victory to tie Cleveland for the league leadership. The Sox pounded Dutch Leonard for nine bingles.

Many exclusive and patented advantages are yours with Champion Spark Plugs no matter what kind of service you put them to.

Sillimanite, Champion's exclusive insulating material, endows all Champion Spark Plugs with insulator strength unequaled in resistance to heat, electrical and mechanical shock.

Silment, a recent Champion development, exclusive and patented, is a compressed dry powder seal, used in place of cement, which makes all Champions permanently gas-tight. This, in turn, has resulted in spark plugs that perform with absolute uniformity in every cylinder because they retain their assigned heat range position—the yardstick of spark plug performance.

Insist on Champion Spark Plugs because you can depend on them for better performance and greater economy in every engine.

AMAZING NEW RIDE

The "Roadking's" new ride is the sensation of the lowest-price field—faster steering, easier handling, new luxury.

RAILS ATTEMPT RALLY IN QUIET STOCK SESSION

Other Groups Stand Still as Traders Await President's Monopoly Message.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Rails made a mild stab at a rally in today's stock market while most other groups either stood still or slipped a shade.

Many traders, brokers said, indicated thaty would keep commitments to a minimum pending the president's forthcoming monopoly message and further light on the state of business. Continuance of the Czechoslovakian crisis was also conducive of wariness.

Bonds and commodities were quiet and uneven. Foreign securities markets lacked definite trends.

Analysts studied the figures of the department of commerce disclosing exports topped imports by $320.737,000 during the first three months of this year, reversing the showing in the like 1937 period when the import total was ahead $113,271,000.

Not so favorable was a sharp drop in business loans of banks last week, as reported by the federal reserve board.

DRINKS POISON IN TAXI

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Coroner E. E. Smith investigated today the death of Miss Leona Sahr Moore, 36, who entered a taxicab and, according to the driver, Gordon Gress, said, "Well, buddy, here's to your health," as she drank poison from a small bottle.

Return of Circus Spotlights Clown Once More

Reopening of the circus season again focuses the spotlight on that jester of the sawdust ring—the clown, whose trade and traditions date back through the centuries. His is a select circle which perpetuates stunts and tricks which have their beginnings back in the middle ages. The court jester and traveling harlequin were his antecedents. His profession is not an easy one and only seldom does he emerge from his grease paint to become a personage. Most clowns live and die in comparative obscurity. But their compensation comes from helping the world to forget its troubles, and once again they are starting their seasonal trek through the country, stirring thousands to laughter and carrying on their ancient tradition in true trouper tradition.

DOUBTS IF TAX MEASURES PASS

Barkley Sees Disagreement in Senate on Bill to End Salary, Bond Exemptions.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic floor leader, said today it was "in the realm of doubt" whether the senate would approve President Roosevelt's tax exemption recommendations.

Mr. Roosevelt suggested yesterday that Congress enact a bill removing all income tax exemptions from future federal and state securities issues and salaries.

Legislators, while generally favoring his objectives, disagreed over the question of whether they could be effected by mere legislation or whether a constitutional amendment would be necessary.

A plan similar to that outlined by the president was submitted to the senate by Senator Clark, D., Mo., when the tax revision bill was under consideration and was voted down, 41 to 23. Administration followers, including Barkley, were among the opponents.

Clark said today that Mr. Roosevelt's message might bring many senators around to supporting tax exemption legislation. Barkley, however, said the previous vote made a general change of sentiment appear doubtful.

A bill to end existing tax exemptions would have to originate in the house ways and means committee, which initiates all revenue legislation. Chairman Doughton, D., N. C., of that group declined to predict whether action could be taken at this session.

"We will have to have a meeting and go over the president's message before we can tell what we are going to do," Doughton said.

Most congressional leaders interpreted Mr. Roosevelt's recommendations as meaning he would be pleased if action were taken at this session but would not insist on immediate consideration.

In the past, the courts have held that the government can not tax state securities and salaries and that the states can not tax federal securities and salaries. The president's message noted a trend away from this position in recent court decisions and added that "it is not unreasonable to hope" legislation wiping out tax exemptions might be sustained.

'NUTS!,' SAYS JUDGE AND COURT SPECTATORS FALL IN AISLES

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stenographer pretty near fell off her chair, a lawyer sat down weakly and a court attache reflected that his ears must be going back on him.

That's the way it affected them when Supreme Court Justice Edward Byrne said "nuts!" from the bench.

It came in a divorce trial with an attorney questioning the witness about love.

"Did you love your wife at that time?" cooed counsel.

"Love!" barked the court, "how often I've heard that word. They use it like the word soup. The way it's used nowadays, people know as much about it as they do about Mars.

"Nuts!"

Well sir, you could have heard a fec drop for the next half-minute.

Then they went on with what he said to her and she said to him and the court still frowning slightly sat back and studied the ceiling.

The justice's outburst came in the suit of Mrs. Helena Mindheim, former movie actress, against Isaac Mindheim, wealthy milliner.

Children's Teeth Decay Blamed On Improper Foods

KANSAS CITY—(INS)—Improper diet and neglect is the cause today for the earlier decaying of children's teeth, says Dr. Neal D. Williams, state director of professional WPA projects.

Dr. Williams said the state-wide dental project has revealed a great need for more adequate dental attention. Many of the permanent teeth of children between the ages of 7 and 14 were found to be in such bad condition extractions were necessary.

There are at present eight WPA clinics in Kansas City and Jackson county. A dentist and a dental assistant are assigned to each clinic and work 128 hours each month.

PEOPLE FORGET STEINMETZ

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—Babe Ruth and Kate Smith are greater heroes than Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, and Charles Steinmetz, scientist, in the opinions of non-internationally - minded persons, according to a survey made by the Character Research Institute of Washington University.

T. B. TOLL FOR YEAR HITS 37

16 New Cases Discovered in County at Quarterly Re-check Clinic.

The number of new cases of tuberculosis discovered in Richland county this year reached 37 today as 16 more were reported at the quarterly re-check clinic held last Friday under the direction of Dr. T. L. Bliss of Akron.

Of the 28 suspects examined, 16 showed a positive test while 11 proved negative, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner said. Disposition of the case of one suspect was deferred for further study while two of the 16 positive cases were recommended to the county commissioners to be sent to a sanitorium.

Of the new cases discovered, eight were located in the city, while six were reported from scattered parts of the county.

Pointing out again the need for a convalescent home for tuberculosis patients, Dr. Rehder said that the 177 suspects examined at clinics so far this year, nearly 25 per cent have needed the care of physician trained in that particular work.

Simone Simon

Sandra Martin

WALKS INTO JAIL

Transient Back for Lodging, Picked Up as Fugitive.

John Aclin, 35, a transient, who walked into the custody of Chief of Police Leroy Coffey at Shelby, was held in the county jail today for the sheriff of Greenville county, South Carolina, who was expected to return him there to face charges of safe blowing, larceny and house-breaking.

Meanwhile Sheriff E. P. Long had received extradition papers signed by Gov. Martin L. Davey and Gov. Olin B. Johnston of South Carolina providing for Aclin's release to officers in the southern state.

Aclin was arrested by Chief Coffey after he paid a second visit to the Shelby jail to ask for a night's lodging. In the three-weeks' interval between Aclin's two visits, his fingerprints had identified him at Washington as the South Carolina fugitive. Chief Coffey merely waited for him to return for more of the city's hospitality and then took him into custody.

Students, Faculty Pay Tribute To Former Teacher

Students and faculty members of Senior high school paid tribute to Alfred Chabourel, former member of the school faculty who died April 14 at a memorial service Monday in the high school auditorium.

Students and teachers taking part in the service were associated with him at the school and at the Grace Episcopal church where he was an active worker.

A. T. Owen, teacher in the vocational education department, of which Mr. Chabourel was an instructor, represented the faculty, John Baki, a student in the vocational department, represented the student body, and Richard Wright, a member of the Sunday school and the Grace Episcopal church, represented the church.

Two duets were sung by Richard Wright and John Taylor, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Dean Eckert, director of the boy's choir at the Episcopal church. The two students were members of the Sunday school class of which Mr. Chabourel was the teacher.

As a final tribute, the entire assembly stood for a silent moment of prayer. H. D. Bishop, assistant principal at the school, was in charge of the service.

ADDS CRAWFORD POST TO DUTIES

Richland Highway Maintenance Head Given 2 Counties; Other Job Abolished.

Arthur Fletcher, Richland county state highway maintenance superintendent, today added Crawford county to his district after state highway patrols announced that the superintendent's position had been abolished in Crawford county.

Matthew Carr, personnel director of the state highway department, said the move in abolishing the Crawford county post was in the interest of "economy and more efficient administration."

The superintendent's position in Crawford county has been held since 1927 by Russell D. Reiff of Bucyrus, who was paid $175 per month.

Fletcher has been Richland county superintendent since January, 1937. He was appointed to the post to succeed Guy Stewart when he was elected county commissioner.

Fletcher said he would retain his headquarters here, but will divide his time between the Mansfield and Bucyrus offices. Charles Kimmerline is timekeeper in charge of the Crawford county office.

Latest In Electric Ranges on Display

If you're in search of a real thrill—visit one of the seven showrooms in Mansfield this week where 1938 electric ranges are being exhibited and demonstrated.

This is the week for a general national showing of electric ranges and Mansfield merchants are ready to show the most up-to-the-minute ranges of all nationally known makes. Displays open today and run through Saturday. Shops that will be given over to range displays this week are the Ohio Public Service company; Sears, Roebuck and Company; Montgomery Ward company; Met's Budget Store; Richland Electric company; The Harpster company, and the Martin-Hardware company.

Of the many refinements that have come about over a period of years in electric cooking, none is more pronounced than speed. Some old ideas on electric cooking will go into the discard with this week's demonstration, for the new ranges provide the fastest known method of cooking. It's not unlike rubbing Aladdin's magic lamp, for one merely presses a button—and there is an instantaneous surge of flameless heat.

Stores taking part in the display will have an array of 1938 models on their floors and attendants to answer questions and give information.

Interest Increasing.

There is increasing interest in cooking with electricity, since it is the cleanest method. There is no soot to blacken utensils—which is something to be considered in view of the "all white" kitchens of today. There is no combustion to cause greasy smoke or smudge—and as a result curtains and walls stay cleaner longer.

And when it comes to dishwashing all the old drudgery of scouring pots and pans is gone. You can wash your gleaming utensils first instead of last if you desire to, and the water will still be clean for the dishes. And they can be dried on the nicest towels in the kitchen, too. Dishwashing drudgery goes out the window when electric cookery comes in.

It is no longer considered a luxury. The thriftiness of modern electric ranges is proved every day in thousands of modest dwellings where costs are carefully scrutinized, where pennies are important and where management is made a fine art by husbands and wives.

The surprising efficiency of the new electric ranges, and the fact that electric rates are lower than ever before, combine to make electric cooking a real economy—not to mention the saving in the cost of cleaning curtains, walls, draperies and furniture.

No Reason For Failures.

There is no reason for cooking failures when a housewife knows her electric range and its possibilities and advantages. Measurements of heat units are accurate. You can have a searing hot heat for steaks or a controlled low heat for long cooking and simmering.

Another commendable feature is that oven temperature is perfectly controlled. Moisture control of ovens gives uniformity in baking results. Biscuits are ready in a jiffy in the new electric ranges, and pies and cakes that just will not turn out right in the old fashioned ovens are baked perfectly with the even, constant, measured heat of electricity.

Whole meals virtually cook themselves, giving the housewife a leisure never experienced before. There's no need for pot-watching. You can prepare your food for cooking, set the time clock—and forget it. You can leave the house, play bridge or busy yourself with gardening—and the meal will be perfectly cooked at the time set.

One feature that is always commented on by women who use electric ranges is the absence of heat in summer, especially when canning or making jellies.

While most of the nationally known ranges have all of the modern refinements, each of them have their own individual touches.

Visitors Welcome In Electric Kitchen

Party giving, or feeding unexpected guests—once a problem and a chore—is a delightful adventure in the kitchen of today, thanks to electric cooking.

Getting ready for guests nowadays is as easy as pie, if an electric range is in your home. Attractive appetizers, toothsome mixed grills, toasted delicacies are the work of but a moment— the snap of a switch—and they're done.

Ten to one your guests will be in the kitchen with you, too, watching and helping, and exclaiming over the fast, fascinating performance of that electric servant which helps to make life more gracious, more leisurely—more exciting, too.

Bring your kitchen up to date with one of the new 1938 electric ranges, and watch your skill in cookery win first prize for you in your bridge club's estimation!

Broiler Meals Give New Taste Thrill

It's the flavor of electricity broiled meals that makes them a mealtime sensation. They pamper the palate as seductively as those famous charcoal-broiled foods.

They pamper the cook, too, because electric heat is fast, clean and convenient. And your digestion? Yes, that's right. Dietitians praise electric broiling for its healthfulness.

With all this expert enthusiasm, it's easy to understand why so many women insist that the broiler is the star attraction of the electric range.

Meat for broiling should be tender but it needn't be expensive. The glowing heat of your electric broiler gives that delectable grilled flavor to chopped beef or lamb, fish fillets, sausages, frankfurters, corned beef hash, sliced or ground left-over meat.

Small pieces of meat on skewers (called "en brochette" when you're feeling fancy) are attractive. Favored meats for broiling are beef tenderloins or steaks, lamb chops or steaks, sliced ham, calves liver, sweetbreads, lobster, oysters and chicken.

And now comes the fun of selecting fruits and vegetables to turn your meat course into a sophisticated mixed grill. You can give imagination free rein in combining foods that will excite the eyes as well as the appetite.

The fruit family offers bananas, raw apple rings, orange or grapefruit halves or sections, and canned pineapple, peaches, apricots, pears, or plums.

Vegetables? Try these, raw: tomatoes, thick slices of onion, mushrooms, halved summer squash, sliced white potatoes. And these, first parboiled: carrots, sweet potatoes, white potatoes, parsnips, whole onions, spiced eggplant, cauliflower flowerets.

Choose fruits and vegetables that can cook as long as the meat, or just half as long so they can be put on the rack when the meat is ready to be turned.

Get acquainted with the broiler on your electric range—and watch the faces of your family brighten with zest and appetite when that grilled food comes to the table.

Walk From 4 to 5 Miles a Day In Old Kitchens

From four and one-half to five miles per day—that's how far the average housewife walks in the preparation of three meals a day in the old-fashioned poorly arranged kitchen!

A recent Connecticut survey brought out this amazing fact, showed too that not only did the homemaker in this kitchen walk a mile and a half in the preparation of one meal, but that her steps cross and recross in a veritable maze of waste motion.

Modernization of the particular kitchen in which the survey was made, arranging it in production-line pattern, spacing range, refrigerator, and sink at the points of a triangle, and building standardized shelving and work tables between them cut the housewife's mileage to three quarters of a mile per meal—just about half of what it was.

Electrical equipment helped to reduce motions in preparing food to a minimum and fatigue of the housewife was cut tremendously by the improvements.

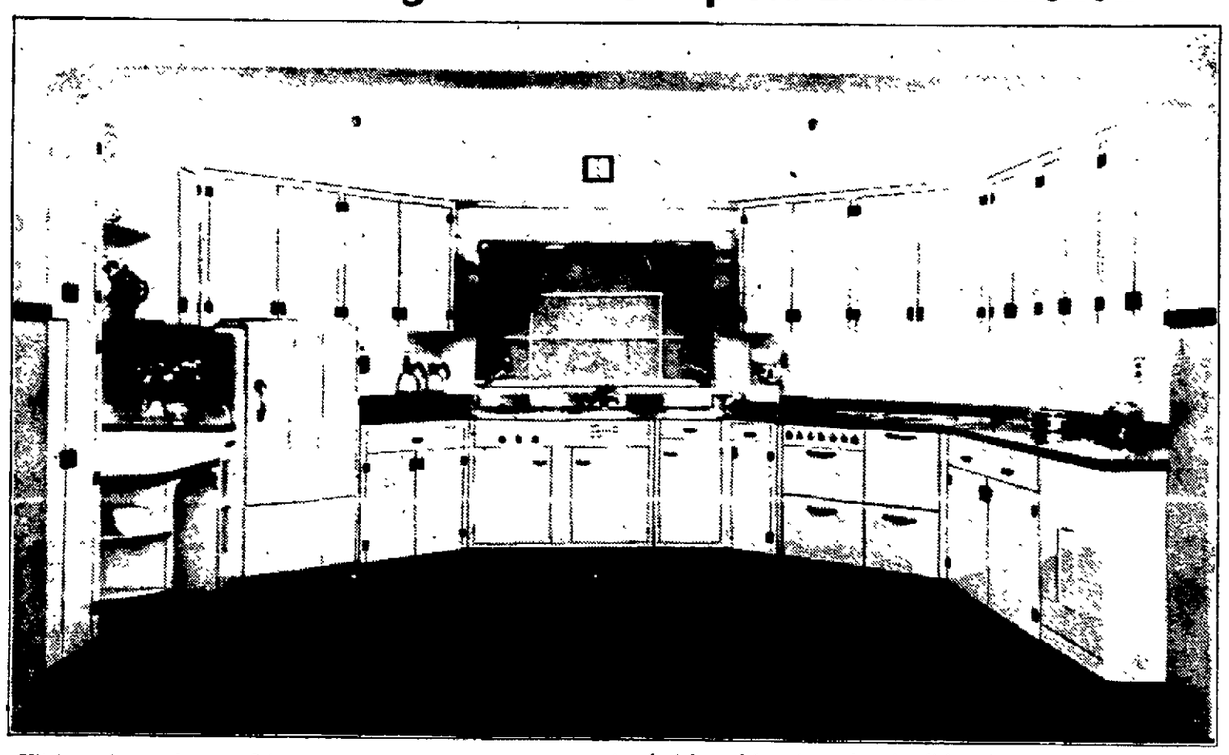
What was done in this home is possible anywhere. The rearrangement of a badly laid-out kitchen, modernized with useful electrical equipment, will save weary miles of useless walking, reduce lost motion, give many more hours of leisure, increase the efficiency of kitchen work.

Here's a Tasty Dish For Lunch

Time: 16 minutes with preheated broiling unit. Switch set for BROILING.

Directions: Scrub 2 or 3 sweet potatoes and cook in salted water until almost tender; about 15 minutes. Remove tough stalks and coarse leaves from 1 bunch broccoli; wash thoroughly in cold water; team until tender but not broken; about 20 minutes. Drain 1 can long pineapple sticks. Use about ¾ lb. sliced boiled ham. Lay one stick pineapple in each slice of ham. Roll ham, and skewer with toothpicks. Drain sweet potatoes, peel, and slice about ½ inch thick. Drain broccoli; place in broiler pan; sprinkle with salt and pepper and dot with butter; place broiler rack over broccoli in pan. Arrange ham roll and sweet potato slice on rack. Sprinkle potatoes with salt, pepper, and brown sugar; dot with butter. Place broiler pan 3 inches below glowing broiler unit and broil 8 minutes. Turn ham rolls to broil on other side and broil 8 minutes longer. Remove from broiler and arrange on large serving platter.

Here's an Arrangement of Complete Electric Kitchen



Kitchen of your dreams! It's arranged of individual units that may be bought separately, assembled in a semi-circle to save time and needless steps. It's all electric, styled for beauty, efficiency, and modernity. Here we see from left to right, a new electric refrigerator, electric dishwasher and garbage-disposal unit, and a spotless electric range with its convenient storage and dish-warmer compartments. Many labor-saving electric appliances rest on waist-level surfaces. Plan now to build for the future. Acquire one major piece at a time.

Electric Canning Replaces Boiler

Summer will be here before long—the season when fruits are cheapest, most delicious. Many a housewife will think of the pleasure of having a pantryfull of luscious home-canned fruits for winter time—and then do nothing more than think about it, because of the heat that must be suffered with old-fashioned canning methods.

But modern electrical canning is a far cry from the old wash-boiler method of boiling cans and jars in water—of standing, stirring-spoon in hand, over a seething hot kettle of fruit or vegetables.

With electric canning, the modern housewife packs her fruits in jars and then processes them in her electric oven. In this constant-temperature, moisture-controlled, fully insulated oven she cooks fruits, preserves, and fruit butters, while on the speedy surface units she makes firm, shimmering jellies, sterilizing jars and glasses in the roomy deep cooker of her electric range.

HOUSEWIVES NEED NOT CHANGE COOKING HABITS, EXPERT SAYS

Modern electric ranges need no special cooking technique, no change of recipes, methods, length of time required for cooking, or temperature adjustments. They do, however, offer you a great many advantages.

Automatic heat control and heavy insulation make oven operation economical. High wattage electric units offer quick-heating oven, broiler, and range-top units.

When cooking temperatures are reached, regulated ovens automatically reduce current consumption to low maintenance requirement. Range-top units can be adjusted to the scope of a simmering burner, using a negligible mount of current.

Insulated cooker wells, with an insulated, vented cover and adjustable heat, use a minimum of current and are useful for many types of cookery.

Nearly all manufacturers feature a range with an automatic time control and kitchen clock. Women whose work or interests frequently take them away from home, or the kitchen, appreciate the freedom that this nearly automatic range gives them, and for them it's well worth its cost.

A dinner placed in the oven begins to cook at the appointed time, and the electric current will be turned off at an appointed time. The automatic time control on some electric ranges will even turn on and off the insulated cooker well and the appliance outlet.

Many models which do not have an automatic time control have a reminder clock that may be set to announce that the 3-minute eggs are done, that the apple pie has baked a full 50 minutes and is brown outside and luscious inside.

Here's a List Of Rules For Economy

Careful planning of cookery will save you many dollars over the year. Here are condensed rules that will give you real economy in the kitchen.

1. Study the manufacturer's recommendation for your range.
2. Select the right pan for the job—and for the range unit.
3. Turn on the heat after pans of food are on heating units.
4. Turn off the heat as soon as food is done.
5. Learn to take advantage of the stored heat in electric units and insulated ovens.
6. Start cooking or reheating food just in time to serve it.
7. Oven temperature and time-controls prevent overcooking. If your range has these features, use them.
8. Remove foods from refrigerator about an hour before cooking time, so that they warm to room temperature before cooking.

Electric Range Cooks Breakfast While You Sleep

Wake up! The family breakfast is waiting, madame! Steaming hot, ready to be taken from the oven—and not a servant in the house, either. How is it done? Miracle? Yes, the miracle of the timer on your electric range.

You can enjoy a luxurious and leisurely breakfast—say cinnamon rolls, baked apples and sausage, and fragrant hot coffee, without having to get out of bed on a cold morning to prepare it, simply by using the timing device on your electric range.

Prepare your breakfast the night before—set the timer, and while you are still sleeping, your breakfast is cooking to a turn. You avoid the morning rush to get something ready for a hurrying husband and clamorous children — and they'll tell you that you're serving better breakfasts, too!

Even a Child Can Cook Electrically

"No! No! Mustn't touch!" is going out of the lives of thousands of children, and the pleasures of the mixing bowl and oven are no longer forbidden to even the very young.

With an electric range in the house there is no reason why youngsters cannot get off to a flying start in the art of cookery.

The new electric ranges are safe for children to work with—and so simple to operate that even a child can cook successfully—and safely—with one of them.

Perhaps there is a young culinary genius in your house who is just ready to bud into a dining room sensation. There is no better way on earth to encourage her than with an Electric Range.

FOR BREAKABLE COOKIES

Rich cookies break easily if they are allowed to cool on the baking pans. As soon as they are baked they should be removed with a broad-bladed knife or a spatula. Allow them to cool on a cake rack or waxed paper and then carefully store them in a cooky jar.

Boiled custard is done when it leaves a light-colored film over a silver spoon when the latter is dipped into it. Stir the custard constantly while it is cooking in the double boiler to insure smoothness.

Electricity Keeps Cooking Job Clean

Lucky the woman who owns an electric range! Her kitchen stays clean and she stays serene. Her reputation as a housekeeping marvel grows without end.

The reasons for the amazing cleanliness of electric cooking is not hard to find. It lies in the fact that there is no combustion of fuel. It's just as clean and convenient as turning on your electric light.

Pots and pans stay bright and shiny. You could actually pick them off the stove and powder your nose in them if you wished. Scrubbing and scouring are ended. The black spectre of soot is gone.

Utensils are not all that benefit by the cleanliness of electric cooking. Walls stay bright and attractive. Curtains remain fresh and prim, spotlessly clean. The electric kitchen always has that newly laundered look.

It is easy to see how the cleanliness of electric cooking not only saves an untold amount of kitchen drudgery, but also a good deal of unnecessary expense.

Easily Cleaned.

Owners insist that an electric range is as easy to keep clean as it is to use. This is all that has to be done . . .

Turn all switches off. Wash enamel parts with warm, soapy suds, rinse and dry.

SURFACE UNITS: Food spillage will not injure the heating units. Foods spilled over, either fall or drip through to drip pan under unit and are easily cleaned.

Surface units are easily removable, and any foreign material can be removed by shaking over a piece of paper.

THE OVEN: Turn switches off. Take out the easily removable baking racks, heat distributor, and oven baking units. Wipe with cloth wrung from soapy water. Wipe off baking racks and heat distributor. The all porcelain oven is as easy to clean as a china dish.

THE DEEP-WELL COOKER: Wipe out the well with a cloth wrung from soapy water, then wipe dry. Lift the well to clean the edges.

You'll find that in all ways electricity gives you inexpensively and conveniently the world's cleanest way to cook.

Combine thin slices of avocado with slices of baked ham—to serve as an appetizer. Be sure to marinate the avocado slices in French dressing, leaving them in the refrigerator for about an hour.
